Sugar-Coated Taxes

Every penny paid to the federal government in payroll deductions is spent. This is just as true of deductions for Social Security as it is of deductions for income taxes.

The Social Security taxes, 1 percent each from employer and employee, go into the general fund. Congress is expected to set aside the same amount for payment into an old-age reserve account, but is not required to do so. The money in the reserve account may be invested in federal securities representing the public debt. This money, in turn, is used by the Treasury in the same way as money from the sale of its other securities.

In other words, when the time comes to use it, the money is gone. It has been spent. To raise new money to pay its obligations, the government then must collect still more taxes and sell still more securities and so on. Some years from now, when all the money that has been spent for such things as repairs on the White House and aid for Europe is needed to pay what is due on Social Security accounts, the government will have to raise billions through taxes to back up its I. O. U.'s.

What, one wonders, would be the public reaction if the whole proposition of Social Security were called by its right name—a process for sugar-coating federal taxation to make it more palatable to taxpayers?

Dr. Bunche's Contribution

The armistice between Israel and Egypt is a triumph for the first American negro to become a leading figure in international affairs—Dr. Ralph J. Bunche. He was the U. N. mediator in the negotiations.

Dr. Bunche is the grandson of a slave. He was born in Detroit and orphaned when he was 12. He worked his way through public school and college and went on to earn a master's and a doctor's degree in political science. He served the government with distinction in World War II, and in 1945 was the first member of his race to be a "desk officer" in the State department. He helped to write the U. N. charter and later was loaned to the U. N. as director of its trusteeship division. This led to his interest in the Middle East. When Count Folke Bernadotte was assassinated, Dr. Bunche became acting mediator in the dispute between Israel and its neighbors.

That dispute would have been settled sometime. Dr. Bunche's contribution was to settle it sooner rather than later. Americans feel that he has made another contribution of equal value. He has reminded them once more that there is opportunity for colored Americans; and that it has nothing to do with laws but a great deal to do with the individual ability of colored Americans.

Chin Up, Senator

J. Howard McGrath, the up-and-coming young senator from Rhode Island, has walked into a hive of bees. It will take all the senatorial dignity he can muster to come out alive.

He has suggested that each of the 48 states should elect three instead of two U. S. senators, and shorten the senatorial term from six to two years. He might as well have kicked his esteemed associates in the teeth. They might have forgiven him for that, but they'll never forgive him for having unorthodox ideas about their status.

Whatever theoretical merit his suggestion may have will be ignored. He will be cuffed, kicked and castigated. But it's interesting to note that he is prepared for this and says it won't discourage him. When the upstart subsidies, perhaps his proposal will be given thoughtful attention. Meanwhile, keep your chin up, senator. The other place hath no fury like a legislator who thinks someone is monkeying with his prerogatives.

They're New Around Here

There are two possible explanations for Russia's official belligerency. As expressed by Marshall Bulganin, minister of Soviet armed forces in a speech on the Red army's 31st anniversary, Russia must be prepared to fight with the United States because this country is getting ready to attack Russia.

That is not so. But Marshall Bulganin and the apprehensive men in the Kremlin may believe it's so; that is one explanation for their attitude. The other is that they may be using a war scare to tighten their own hold on Russian affairs—a favorite method of dictators.

Neither explanation hits the truth. Whether Russian officials are so ignorant about the United States that they suspect it intends to attack their country, or whether the Russian people are so ignorant that they can be fooled by a war scare, the net result is a gross distortion of the single greatest fact in international affairs.

That is the fact that the United States cannot and will not use its resources to start an aggressive war. Russia doesn't understand that—probably can't understand it. As such things go, the Russians are new around here. They don't know the international ropes. They might learn something from talking to the Canadians and the Mexicans, or from history, but they're too scared to believe in good will and low full of propaganda to see that the only reason the United States is preparing for war is to keep Russia from getting the jump.

One Way To Cut Taxes

Senator Bricker is taking a dim view of the withholding tax. He suspects it keeps the taxpayer from knowing how much taxes he pays. The senator thinks it would be better to go back to the former lump-sum plan of payment.

That would be one way to cut taxes—no doubt at all. With tax rates what they are now and what they are likely to be, the federal government needs to handle even more millions of the national wealth there's only one way to collect the money—by withholding it from the people who earn it. Otherwise, government simply couldn't collect that much money.

The real purpose of the withholding tax in the first place was to ease collection of taxes levied at wartime rates. It was proposed and adopted as an expedient. And to differ with Senator Bricker—it has had the effect of reminding taxpayers of their tax burden. Instead of waiting until the end of the tax year for the bad news, they got the bad news every time they looked at a pay check. There isn't a federal taxpayer in existence who doesn't have a slow burn every time he sees what is deducted from his earnings to support the government.

We agree with Senator Bricker that it would be better to go back to the lump-sum plan of payment—if federal taxes could be reduced to a reasonable proportion of the taxpayers' income. But, with federal taxes what they are now, the withholding plan is essential. It is a simplified form of bookkeeping for millions whose incomes are being levied on to support a top-heavy government.

While it is probable that the judgment may be entirely dependable or clear, yet such an exceptional opening for making a new start in an abiding or unusual direction, the feelings, ideals, imagination or intuition may have force to put things over with a strong or spectacular "bang," intriguing and thrilling.

Such glamorous circumstance may be strengthened by pause for shrewd analysis of some very direct and practical rationalizing. But "hunches," curious urges might be entertained, but with due precaution and acumen. Proper affiliations may enhance good feelings and pleasure.

Those whose birthday it is, may find it possible to make their ideals become realities, especially by maintaining hunches, by a due show of shrewd, astute and rational analysis of exceptional or abiding conditions. Strange propensities or glamorous persons may be found intriguing, but it is wise to give heed to common sense and practical evaluation of the unusual circumstances. There may be exciting stimuli to the feelings or emotions of an idealistic or curious intent. Analysis may assist.

A cloud born on this day may be prone to make its decisions by its lower waves or drives rather than pure reason. With care it may enjoy a pleasant and prosperous life.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Types of Minor Foot Defects

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

Many young children are handicapped by minor defects of the feet. These can usually be corrected before treatment is begun, a study is needed to determine just which muscles are involved in the deformity.

The foot is a very complicated structure and, without expert knowledge, it is not easy to see in each case just what force is pulling the foot out of its true shape. In one disorder, known as hallux valgus, the big toe turns in because the muscle between the toe and the foot is contracted and much shorter than it should be. The toe can be pushed into line but, when released, it is immediately pulled back to its former position by the shortened muscle. Strapping the toe in position with adhesive tape and the wearing of a special shoe usually result in correction.

Another type of deformity is known as metatarsus varus. In this condition, the front part of the foot bends inward, while the heel remains firmly on the ground. To correct this condition, it is necessary to stretch the contracted tissues by holding onto the heel and straightening the foot. In some cases it may be necessary to use a cast or special shoe for a period of time.

In another foot defect, the heel turns inward and there is also some contracture of the muscle at the back of the foot so that the heel is drawn up. In slight cases, this condition may be corrected by strapping with adhesive tape. In more severe cases, the wearing of casts is necessary.

Knock-Knees
In children with knock-knees, the legs are often thrown outward during walking while the foot turns inward where it strikes the ground. In such cases, the trouble with the foot will clear up when the knock-knees are corrected.

Flat feet are due to relaxation of the supporting structures in the feet. The best treatment in children consists in wearing shoes with a raised inner border. Special felt pads to support the arches may be of help in some cases. Exercises for strengthening the muscles or ligaments in the foot are also of value. The flat feet may often be associated with knock-knees. However, in such cases, the same type of treatment for ordinary flat feet is employed, although in some cases the wearing of braces may be required to correct this condition.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Q. L.: I have a nine-year-old girl with psoriasis. Could this be caused by insects?

A. Answer: It is not likely that psoriasis could be caused by insects. The exact cause of this condition is not known, but it is thought to be due to some disorder in the metabolism of nitrogen, or fat.

Blinky the Mooch,
Will Get His Last
Gift - A Funeral

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—(UP)—Blinky

the Mooch's Skid Row pals split their panhandling takes today to give him a decent cremation.

Characters from flophouses up and down West Madison street put an extra whine into their voices to squeeze additional coin out of the citizens they "touched."

The extra money was needed to fulfill Blinky's last mooch—for a free funeral, minus flowers but including cremation. The funeral was scheduled for today.

Blinky's real name was Ben Morgan. But during the 40 years he spent on "the street," his glass eye and gentle touch earned him the nickname by which he was known to police, bums, saloonkeepers and Salvation Army ladies.

He died Monday of a heart attack while sipping beer in his favorite hangout, the B. & B. tavern. He was 64.

In his pockets officers found a note. It said in case anything ever happened to him, to please notify the barkeep at the B. & B. It also asked that he be cremated, but the mourners should omit flowers, Blinky was laid out at a funeral parlor in the midst of the saloons and flophouses.

The mortician said that "we're having a little trouble getting the sort of minister Blinky would have liked."

"Just anybody wouldn't do," he said. "Those of us who knew Blinky knew that he wouldn't want a high-binder. He'd want one who understood him and the other fellows here on the street."

Auditor Ferguson Stars On Air Show

CLEVELAND, Feb. 24—(AP)—State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson had the star role in the Cleveland Press club's radio show last night. Here were some of the lines:
Question: "If Gov. Frank J.

Lausche enters the Democratic primary for U. S. senator from Ohio in 1950, will you withdraw?"
Ferguson: "I will not."
"Could you beat Mayor Thomas A. Burke of Cleveland for the nomination?"
"Burke might take Cuyahoga county, but I would beat him in the rest of the state."
"You say you want to go to Washington to save the taxpayer money. How?"

"I would cut out a lot of useless and duplicate jobs. It does cost plenty to have a social program. I imagine we'd have to tax the corporations for that."
"Why don't you start economics in the state government?"
"I could if I were governor."
"Do you want to run for governor?"
"No." (Quickly.)
"Will U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft

(be a pushover in 1950?"
"I think so."

Attendants were Miss Dolores Howells, maid of honor; Mrs. Norma J. Hotchkiss, matron of honor, and Mrs. Beatrice Vavrek, bridesmaid. Albert Frost, best man, and James Brewer and Gerald Hotchkiss, ushers.

Women in the party wore blue satin gowns and carried shower bouquets of sunburst roses. The gold crosses they wore were a gift of the bride.

One hundred and eighty guests were entertained at a dinner and reception. Guests were from Texas, New York, Virginia and Michigan. The couple spent their honeymoon in Canada. For traveling the bride wore a blue outfit and a corsage of yellow roses and gardenias.

Lydia Class Has Birthday

Mrs. J. A. Hinkle was the only charter member of the Lydia Bible class of Holy Trinity Lutheran church who attended the 20th anniversary party Tuesday evening in the church.

An interesting history, read by Mrs. A. H. Schropp, revealed that the class was instigated by Mrs. Dan Brodander of Chicago, then the former Betty Franke of Salem. He also suggested the name chosen. It started with seven members and the enrollment is now 44.

Greetings were read from Mrs. Brodander and Mrs. A. J. McDaniel of Florida, formerly of Salem.

Mrs. Carl Aeschlimann was program chairman.

Misses Nancy Stockman and Treva Bush sang two duets, "Church is the Wildwood" and "Till We Meet Again."

Mrs. Russell Fortune offered a group of humorous readings, "The Human Tonic," "Sufficiency" and "Mother's Grocery List."

A candle-lighting service was featured, with former officers lighting the candles in a tall candelabra which was also used when the church observed its 20th anniversary.

Mrs. William Ritz was the first teacher. The others were Mrs. Edward Hoch, Mrs. Clinton Moul and Mrs. G. D. Keister. Mrs. J. A. Felt is the present teacher, with Mrs. Fortune, assistant.

Mrs. Aeschlimann presented each person with an individual candle and holder on which was inscribed "20th Anniversary."

The roll call, "Age or Forfeit," afforded much merriment.

Mrs. Lowell Flick, president, officiated at the business session.

Mrs. Ida Wyes, Mrs. Olga Brudery, Mrs. Walter Smith and Mrs. Keister, hostesses, served lunch to approximately 37 members and guests.

Evening Dress of '20's Coming Back

NEW YORK, Feb. 24—(UP)—The evening dress that swirled in the smoke of a speakeasy, rode under racoon in the rumble seat and gave "IT" to an F. Scott Fitzgerald heroine is very nearly back in style today.

"Long evening dress is shortly going to look very conservative indeed," said Mainbocher, introducing his exclusive custom collection this week.

He hasn't got his skirts up to the 1920's knee, but the effect is almost as startling. They've got tiers that flap, panels that cascade to the floor on one side only, banded shoulder straps and plain old chemist tops.

One of the floor length gowns is shown in flowered chiffon, too—lilies on peach.

Another evening dress is hung all around with tiny miniature bells, sounds like a herd of goats and apparently came out of nowhere but a pixy imagination.

The daytime headline is no issue with this designer—12 or 13 inches off the floor. The "throw-back" evening dresses range from just above the floor to eight inches. Between the two, it's an afternoon dress.

Mrs. Robert Bruderly

WATER PUMP FOR LEETONIA STUDIED

Would Aid Industries, Offer Greater Fire Protection

LEETONIA, Feb. 24—At the board of public affairs meeting Monday night it was revealed that the Guide Co., newcomer to Leetonia, plans to install a sprinkler system. This was learned during a discussion on the proposed purchase of a new water pump that would provide more water pressure throughout the community.

The Crescent plant has announced plans to install a sprinkler system and some of the pipe and other equipment has already been delivered to the plant.
The Leetonia industries are among those most actively pushing the drive to secure a larger pump. The board has taken no action as it is awaiting a report from Donald Heffelfinger, engineer, who has been called in on technical phases of the proposition.

Heffelfinger said today that, although he has dis-used the pump question with the village officials only twice, there is no question as to the need of an additional pump. There is only one pump available for use now because the other pump hasn't been in operation for years. It is obsolete and would be expensive to repair.

He added that if the present pump should fail, the standpipe reserve would last only a few days under normal usage. In case of a fire this water would soon be exhausted.

With another pump the facilities would be adequate for any industrial expansion, as well as, protecting the community in case of major fires.
The present pump more than takes care of the day to day water needs of Leetonia but the proposed pump would double the current potential.

Babson Sees Drop Until Bottom In 1952-53

By ROGER W. BABSON
(Written for United Press)
WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., Feb. 23—(UP)—People are again feeling pinched for money.

Competition in most industries is beginning to become troublesome. The supply lines are getting clogged with goods. The public has used up a large portion of its savings. With many more concerns manufacturing all kinds of products and with many more people without available savings, unemployment is sure to increase.
Then the "vicious circle" which caused the expansion is bound to work its reverse. This is due to Sir Isaac Newton's law of action and reaction which is as fundamental in economics as in chemistry or physics.

No Sudden Drop
On the other hand, I do not expect a sudden drop as occurred in 1920-21, 1930-32 and in 1937. Instead of falling out of the 30th story window we will walk down the stairs. This will be due to new inventions, unemployment insurance, minimum wages, relaxed installment regulations and more liberal small loan operations, and to our tightly organized labor unions.

No artificial or other legislation can prevent a red area of depression from sometime following the abnormal price boom which we have enjoyed the past seven or eight years, but legislation can change the shape of such a depressive arc. Legislation can taper off the decline.

Hence, instead of saying that "crash" is just ahead of us, as preached in 1929 when there was no "oxygen" or other drugs available in Washington, I now say we have started to "walk down stairs" and will not reach the pavement until 1952 or 1953.

There is nothing to worry about now. Both the employment figure of the past few years and the unemployment figures now being published are 50 per cent political estimates and guesses put out by Washington.

But the business honeymoon is over and we should once more realize that we cannot loaf our way to prosperity. We must give more time and labor for a dollar's wages and profits.

Poses As Girl, Fools California U. Co-eds

BERKELEY, Calif., Feb. 24—(AP)—A dozen sorority houses at the University of California learned the hard way today that the identity of Mary Lou Ulrich, "She's Walter Robert Ulrich, a 20-year-old Junior from San Diego."

Ulrich wanted to find out how the better half lived so he posed as Mary Lou during rush week or sorority row. That's the time the girls pick out prospective new members.

With the help of French heels, borrowed new look dress, a hair curl and strategically placed paddings—Ulrich counted these conquests of his foray into no man's land.

Seven return invitations to sororities.
Fourteen cups of tea and a dozen tiny sandwiches.

The telephone numbers of 21 co-eds and one housemother.

The broken moment he told fraternal brothers at the Kappa Alpha house, came when a housemother took him by the arm and said: "A broken hearted but victorious boy, he said to say anything."

RAW MATERIAL SUPPLY IS GOOD

Iron Age Report That Steel Shortages May Be Gone Within Six Months

NEW YORK, Feb. 24—(AP)—The steel industry's raw material supply outlook is better than at any time since the war. The Iron Age, metal working trade weekly, said today.

Reporting prospects for an all-time six month record in steel output, the publication commented: "It is more than a possibility that by the middle of this year talk of steel shortages will be down the drain."

Helping the trend to normal, The Iron Age said, have been the weather, better coking coal, condition of blast furnaces and improved supply of pig iron and scrap.

"The weather may have knocked the props out from under the west and far west but it dealt a kindly deal to the east and middle west," said the trade weekly. "It is estimated that good weather in those areas has meant an added one million tons of steel over and above what would have resulted this year had the winter months been severe in the east and midwest."

Better Coke
"The increase in the amount of better coking coal—helped along by more and more coal washing—this year will mean an increase of 1½ million tons of steel ingots. So the weather and better coal can be credited with 2½ million tons of steel this year—or at least at that annual rate."

The Iron Age reported no major blast furnace repair programs slated for some time, and noted the number of new linings in the past few years had put blast furnace operations at a new high. It added:

"If foundry demand continues at a lower level steel firms will have more and more pig iron to use in open-hearth furnaces."

Scrap supplies were reported as much better than they were six months ago. Manganese ore and ferromanganese were listed as raw materials "that may give steelmakers some headaches."

"They are not alarmed about manganese ore," the trade weekly added. "Imports from Africa and India are expected to improve and dependence on Russian ores will decline. There is a disposition in some quarters to let the Russians know that the steel industry can get along without them, just as it did during the war."

Although current operating rates at 100.5 per cent of capacity indicate a shortage of lake ore boats to support such output, The Iron Age noted that "the likelihood of an early start of Great Lakes shipping has brightened the ore supply picture."

STATE

schools and the state on a percentage basis.

"I expect the finance director to include a provision in the budget that if the estimated income proves less than the actual income there should be a percentage distribution to local governments, schools and the state," Gov. Lausche said. "That will stop the continual charges that the state underestimated its income deliberately."

State Finance Director Herbert D. Defenbacher told the conference that department of state requests exceeded the expenditures of 1948 by 40 per cent. He estimated that revenues exclusive of sales tax would total $159,000,000 in 1949 and $153,635,500 in 1950. He offered no guess on how much the sales tax would drop.

Spokesman for schools and local governments suggested to Gov. Lausche that some expenditures for capital improvement and equipment should be paid out of the surplus to release more funds for operating from current expenditures.

Denies Huge Improvements

Finance Director Defenbacher denied that many capital improvements were authorized from funds collected as part of current revenues. The pressure groups also offered a suggestion that school and city aid might come in part out of the present surplus, which they contended was accumulated largely from sales tax funds which were originally earmarked for schools and cities.

State Tax Commissioner C. Emory Glander estimated that the sales tax would yield $125,000,000 in 1949 and "perhaps $120,000,000" in 1950 as compared with the 1948 receipts of $135,744,000.

The sales tax during the first six weeks of this year produced $765,000 less than during the corresponding period of 1948. State Treasurer Don H. Ebright reported. He said the figures on sales tax were "peculiar" and showed decreases in five weeks and an increase one week.

Two persons estimated that the sales tax would total $130,000,000—or a drop of $5,000,000—in 1949.

full committee consideration which will enable it to be reported to the senate in ample time to give Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (D) of Illinois an opportunity to stop the rules debate if he desires to do so.

Chairman Robert A. Taft (R) of Ohio, of the Senate Republican policy committee, however, told questioners he believed Republicans would vote against any motion made by Sen. Lucas to set the rules debate aside to consider housing or anything else. Both parties are committed by their 1948 presidential platforms to enactment of civil rights legislation.

EGYPT

did not consider a formal armistice necessary since she has not taken active part in the Arab war against Israel. Yemen, seventh member of the league, also has not taken an active part.

Lebanon already has engaged in preliminary negotiations with Israel. The pact provides that the Egyptian brigade trapped at Faluja, 30 miles southeast of Tel Aviv since mid-October, will be withdrawn to Egypt beginning tomorrow and completed within five days under U. N. supervision.

Draw Line

An armistice line is drawn from Deir Sunaid, seven miles north of Gaza, to the Egyptian frontier. Within this area the Egyptians are limited to "defensive" forces of three battalions or 2,400 men without tanks or air forces.

The Jews also are required to withdraw from Beit Hanun, five miles north of Gaza, inside this Egyptian defense area, and the town is demilitarized.

The Jews also are to withdraw from Bir Asluj, 15 miles south of Beersheba, and Auja, further south on the frontier. These two towns and a strip extending northwest along the border to the Egyptians' coast area are demilitarized.

The Egyptians are allowed none but defensive forces north of a line running from Abu Awugella, 17 miles south of the border at Auja, to their big coastal military camp at El Arish, 30 miles south of the border.

The Egyptians are to evacuate their forces from the Bethlehem-Hebron area south of Jerusalem through Israeli lines.

EAST LIVERPOOL, Feb. 24—(AP)—Mrs. Cora Bowman, operator of a diner in nearby Wellsville, was robbed of $50 early today by a bandit who threatened her with a machinegun.

Mrs. Bowman told Police Chief H. R. Dustman the robber whipped out the gun, ordered her to "hand over the cash," then fled to a waiting car with an accomplice at the wheel. Tri-state district police departments were alerted.

Fire Hits Drug Store

CLEVELAND, Feb. 24—Firemen estimated loss at $25,000 last night after a three-alarm fire swept through a drugstore at Superior ave. and East 55th st. The fire drove some 70 persons living in apartments above the drugstore into the street.

They were Michael Disalle, Toledo, an active leader of the Ohio League of Municipalities, and Cleveland Finance Director Frank Hanrahan.

HOUSING BILL BEFORE SENATE

Sen. Bricker Adds Clause On Civil Rights Which Causes Troubles

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24—(AP)—A multi-billion dollar long range federal housing bill today was placed before the senate banking committee where it may become involved in a new battle over civil rights.

A proposed amendment by Senator Bricker (R-Ohio) to the public housing section of the measure would spark the fight. The amendment would require that there be no racial discrimination or segregation in public housing projects.

Chairman Sparkman (D-Ala.) of the banking subcommittee which yesterday approved the new housing measure has said adoption of such a provision could kill the whole bill.

"Completely unworkable," said Senator Murray (D-Mont.) of Bricker's proposal, Murray added "no person has the right to kill such a program by bringing in language with which many of us agree, but which is so worded that it may defeat the housing program."

Bricker Firm

But Bricker reminded reports that the platforms of both the Democrats and Republicans contain civil rights planks. He suggested:

"Let's see if they mean it."

The housing bill approved by voice vote yesterday in the subcommittee contains these major provisions:

The housing bill approved by voice vote yesterday in the subcommittee contains these major provisions:

1. A low rent public housing program calling for maximum construction of 810,000 units over a six-year period.

2. A $1,500,000,000 slum clearance program.

3. Authorization for the housing and home finance administrator to undertake broad technical and economic research programs with particular regard to (A) increasing home building and (B) cutting down costs.

4. A $262,500,000 four-year rural dwelling and building program to be handled under the direction of the secretary of agriculture. Of this amount, $250,000,000 would be in the form of loans, and $12,500,000 in grants.

Senator Bricker, who said he is opposed to many features of the bill, also has these two other amendments: (A) to prohibit all types of government employees from living in public housing projects; and (B) to ban persons with an annual income of more than $1,500, except in areas with a population of more than 500,000, where a $1,500 income would be permitted.

McPhee To Speak At Booster Club Columbiana Event

COLUMBIANA, Feb. 24 — Jack McPhee, nationally known sports official, who refereed the Rose Bowl game a couple of years ago, will be the speaker at the annual athletic banquet tendered the Columbiana Clippers football and basketball squads by the Booster Club.

The banquet this year will be Tuesday evening, April 5, but the place has not been decided upon. The high school auditorium not being available on account of building operations.

McPhee was with the Youngstown Y. M. C. A. and director of Camp Fitch for a number of years.

The Booster Club will have an adjourned meeting in the high school Friday evening at 8 to give further consideration to banquet plans.

Science Award Made

Principal D. W. Bailey of the Columbiana High school announces that Miss Carol King, a senior, is the 1949 winner of the Bausche & Lomb science award medal for achieving the highest scholastic record in science during her high school course.

Sponsored jointly by the student council of Columbiana and Fairfield Centralized High schools, the recent semi-formal sweetheart dance at Fairfield school was attended by 60 couples. It was the first combined social event of the two schools.

Mrs. Jennie Groves, erroneously reported in Florida, is now at her home on Union st.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Henry, formerly of Columbiana, who had been living in Van Nuys, Calif., are now in Akron where they are assisting in the home of their son-in-law and daughter. Mr. and Mrs. Glen Jones, whose two-year-old son, Dickie, is a polo victim.

Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Dewalt have joined their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Dickinson, at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where they are spending a vacation.

Cost of Congress

WHILE YOU'RE chafing about the HCL, don't forget that Uncle Sam's HCC (High Cost of Congress) is going up too. With new agencies, committees on this and that, printing, office help, everyone getting more money, etc., etc., legislating costs four times what it cost only two decades ago.

Even Washington, D. C., Shoppers Up Early For Specials

BY HARMON W. NICHOLS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24—(UP)—

It was 3 o'clock in the morning and the fourth and having the only alarm clock set for 7:45 the same morning.

He was bundled up in a horse blanket in the dusty doorway of a typewriter store on 14th street waiting for the door to open at 8. Eddie was there early because the ad said:

"First five persons in get a typewriter for 99 cents."

Eddie wasn't first in line. But, being fourth and having the only alarm clock, he was a sure winner.

The scene reminded this ex-sports writer of the many times he had covered the sale of World Series bleacher seats. Folks huddled in the dark in St. Louis, Chicago, Brooklyn or the Bronx waiting for the gates to open.

Except this was a little different.

These folks were waiting for bargains. They had read the notices in the newspapers.

Full of "Come Ons"

The advertisements were full of "come-on" bargains such as the five typewriters. The folks grooped before that shop knew the typewriters for sale were not new.

But they also knew (the first five of 'em) that the letter "B" on the space bar were worth at least 99 cents each.

Washington's birthday in the nation's capital is a holiday for everybody but the store keeper. Using the oldest trick in the trade he cleans all the old stuff off his shelves. He gets folks to revolve his revolving doors with advertisements like this:

Jewelry store—50 pairs of earrings, were $1.00, now 22 cents.

Men's store—men's suits and topcoats, two for $20.

Ladies straw hats, with veils—regular $2.99—$1.

Clocks—$3.95 to $35; $1.99 to $17.50.

One store showed a drawing of the first President throwing a dollar across the Potomac along the caption "we're pitching our money away."

Adjacent was an ad which said the people had 12 bread boxes for sale which were $2.50 and which the store was willing to part with for 98 cents each.

Accordions which the day before cost $150 could be bought at the birthday sale for $225.

One store advertised 35 garter belts worth $2.00—$3.50 for 99 cents.

A fur shop had 87 "mink and sable" scarfs, which looked something like goat tails; formerly $12.95—$14.95—now $8. (Cash.)

But not all of the fine things like straw hats and fur coats and fancy pants had a price tag on this big sale day. One advertisement asked if the man of the house would be "bald in five years?" It offered sure-fire insurance that he would not if he would use such and such on his dome.

No price mentioned.

HIGHER PRICES SEEN ON BEEF

Housewives Find Some Meats Have Risen 4 to 10 Cents in Week

By the Associated Press
Housewives found higher prices on several meats and vegetables at favorite stores this week. Many beef items were up four to 10 cents a pound from last week in highly competitive chain stores across the country. Pork cuts advanced an average of 6 cents a pound.

Grade "A" eggs were up a penny or two a dozen. String beans advanced as much as 10 cents a pound in several cities, and tomatoes were a few cents higher.

The only meat to show a general downward trend was "veal," which was marked down four to 10 cents a pound by several large chains.

In New York, one chain announced it was cutting evaporated milk a penny a can following wholesale reductions of 35 cents per case of 48 cans by three major manufacturers. That brought the retail price in New York to 27 cents for two cans.

Meat buyers attributed the beef and pork advances to a firm wholesale market resulting from fewer livestock receipts. They said livestock men, disappointed by recent low prices, apparently were holding back animal shipments.

The reduction in veal prices was described as an overdue reflection of last week's decline in other meat items. One major buyer said veal had encountered considerable consumer resistance and was "still too high-priced" at the wholesale level to compete favorably with beef and pork.

High string bean prices resulted from a seasonal "between-crops" shortage, produce men said. The Florida crop is about finished and the markets now are awaiting shipments from Texas and California which have been delayed by unfavorable weather.

"The recent freezes in growing areas were said to be responsible for somewhat lower retail prices of carrots and beets."

"That cold weather turned carrot and beet tops brown," a department of agriculture produce spokesman said. "That didn't harm the vegetables themselves, but shoppers avoid them even if the discolored greens are to be trimmed off."

The resignations were the culmination of a long-standing fight over fund raising.

pearing for the first time in several weeks in many stores across the nation. They have been delayed by unfavorable weather also.

On the other hand, the recent unseasonably warm temperatures in the eastern states have speeded the growth of some vegetables.

BUS DRIVER ADDS STOP TO HIS ROUTE

YOUNGSTOWN, Feb. 24.—John Horvath, Youngstown Municipal Railway Co. bus driver, set up a new "route" for his bus today, and added an unscheduled stop. One of his passengers became unruly, brandishing a knife and frightening other passengers. Horvath said nothing—just swung his bus down through busy downtown traffic and stopped in front of City Hall where two patrolmen "unloaded" the knife wielder.

Fruit Growers Hear Talks At Meeting

GAIN IN FROZEN FOOD OUTLINED

Research On Marketing Sought by Orchardmen Of Two Counties

Although the consumption of frozen fruits and vegetables by the public has increased many fold in the past decade, it is still a small percentage of the nation's food. In 1947, the U.S. used three times as much frozen food per capita than in 1940.

So reported George Dunn, manager of the Great Lakes Growers cooperative of North Girard, Pa., to 150 orchardmen from Columbiana and Mahoning counties at their annual winter meeting Tuesday in Fairfield Centralized school.

The all-day program was arranged by the Agricultural Extension service of both counties. Talks and technical discussions were featured.

The only business conducted was a motion picture by the orchardmen to ask the Ohio Experiment station for a research project into the best methods of marketing fruit in this area.

Advice on Insecticides

In a talk on "Insect Control and New Insecticides," T. H. Parks, extension entomologist of Ohio State university, suggested that members stick to the old and tried insecticides and use the newer ones only sparingly. He said the new bug killers should be used only for their special purpose.

He warned the orchardmen to be careful in the use of DDT, excepting where it must be used for codling moth control. The use of DDT induces a red mite infestation, Parks declared.

"The harvest labor problem is still the greatest confronting apple growers," said Lester Dean, manager of the Grand River orchards of Geneva, another speaker.

He told of his experiences and gave opinions as to growing and marketing apples. He emphasized the need for top quality in the fruit market.

H. D. Holloway, chairman of the organization's marketing committee, reported that growers in the Mahoning-Columbiana county area now own one-fifth of the stock in the Great Lakes Growers cooperative in North Girard and have made good use of its facilities. The plant's freezing unit was used to market lima beans, snap beans, strawberries, apples and peas last year, he said.

Soil management, fertilization, pruning and varieties of apples and peaches were discussed by Vernon Patterson, extension horticulturist of Ohio State.

Wrong Baby? Couple Sues For $100,000

TOLEDO, Feb. 24.—(AP)—A couple sued a hospital and a doctor here today for $100,000 on the charge they had been given the wrong baby.

The petition said Mrs. Alvin Colvin gave birth to a daughter April 12, 1948, in Riverside hospital and took a girl baby home with her the next day.

That evening her obstetrician, Dr. Abraham H. Steinberg, appeared at their home with another girl and a nurse and said the hospital had made a mistake, the petition said. It alleged the doctor took the first baby and left the second one.

The couple said they were suffering anguish because the baby they had was not theirs and they did not know where their own was.

The doctor declined to comment and the hospital said it could make no statement until its attorneys had studied the petition.

Cincinnati U. Defeats Butler In Mid-American Loop Fray

Bearcats Even Things In Title Chase, Win Over Indiana Club By 49-44

By The Associated Press

A crucial Mid-American basketball conference game and an Ohio conference tilt topped a seven-game college game schedule in Ohio last night.

The University of Cincinnati whipped Butler 49 to 44 in the Mid-American loop contest which may result in a deadlock between Cincinnati and the Hoosiers for the conference title.

Both the Bearcats and Butler now have lost a conference game apiece and each has two loop contests to play. Cincinnati had lost to Butler earlier in the season. The Bearcats wiped out a six-point halftime deficit to overcome Butler.

In the Ohio conference game, Muskingum defeated Denison 82-58—the 14th conference win for the Muskies against three losses. Muskingum led all the way.

Chuck Share, big Bowling Green center, got 27 points as the Falcons won over Toledo 65 to 60. The Rockets' squad was cut to seven men because of injuries and ineffectuality.

but they put up a fight against the Falcons all the way and led 15 to 12 at the end of the first period.

Bowling Green held a slim 31 to 27 edge at intermission and was ahead 47 to 46 at the three-quarter mark. After breaking a 55-55 tie five minutes before the end of the game, the Falcons were never headed.

At Gambier, the Kenyon Lords won their 10th game of the season in overpowering Ashland 70 to 56. It was Ashland's 12th loss this season.

Leroy Thompson broke Kent State university's all-time basketball scoring record by dropping in 11 field goals and 13 free throws for 35 points as Kent defeated Adrian (Mich.) college 84-30.

Thompson, a former All-State center from Akron Ellet High school, raised his season point total to 378 for 23 games, of which Kent has won 17. Bill Sudeck of Alliance had Kent's former high mark of 34 for individual scoring in a single game.

The University of Dayton Flyers ran rough-shod over Miami in winning 73 to 55 at Oxford. Center

Brian McCall of Dayton, won scoring honors with 23 points. The victory was Dayton's 12th against 11 defeats. Miami's loss was its 12th in 20 games.

Tiffin defeated Rio Grande 76 to 69, avenging a previous defeat by Rio Grande at Tiffin. Wilberforce, traveling to Kentucky State, was defeated 78 to 36.

BARONS MOVE TO WITHIN HOPE FOR WESTERN COMMAND

Defeat Springfield 4-1 In Game At Cleveland Last Night; Gain Ground

By International News Service

The Cleveland Barons moved within easy distance today of the western division lead in the American Hockey league, and hoped to take over the sector's top spot in their home and home weekend series with the pace-setting Indianapolis Capitals.

Cleveland dropped the Springfield Indians, 7-1, last night in one of the Barons' flashiest offensive games.

The three top-ranked teams were Western Kentucky, Eastern Kentucky and Louisville. Victory for either Western or Eastern seemed likely to bring a bid from the National Invitational Tournament at Madison Square garden.

Louisville's Cardinals, defending champions in the NAIB tournament at Kansas City, probably will get a bid to return this year, although Coach Peck Hickman hasn't decided definitely if he wants his team to make the trip.

The tournament will open tonight with Western facing Tennessee Tech in the first game, and Eastern taking on Murray State in the second game.

Coach Ed Diddle's Western Hill-toppers aren't expected to have too much trouble in this one. Although the Tennessee team closed with a rush, winning its last three games of the regular season by handy margins.

The Eastern-Murray game figured a little closer, although Eastern was a solid favorite. The Maroons have lost only three games on an 18-game schedule, and have beaten ever, the second victory was by a Murray twice this season. How-

Winners of the two games tonight will meet in the upper-bracket semifinal game Saturday afternoon.

The lower bracket's first round games will be played tomorrow night with Marshall tackling Louisville and the fourth-seeded team, Evansville, taking on Morehead State.

Marshall is a definite underdog against Louisville, which has been installed as a pre-tourney favorite because it will be playing on its home floor. The Cardinals have made better than 36 percent of their shots on the Armory floor this season.

All individual seats for the final round Saturday night have been sold, and tickets for the other sessions are rapidly disappearing. Some season books are left, but they also are expected to be gone by tonight.

EIGHT TEAMS VIE IN OHIO VALLEY'S ANNUAL TOURNEY

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(UP)—Eight teams were poised here today for what promises to be one of the nation's toughest little post-season basketball events—the Ohio Valley conference's first annual tournament.

At least three of the teams in the tournament rated consideration for a bid to one of the invitational tournaments, and near-capacity crowds seemed assured for the 7,000-seat Jefferson county armory at each of the sessions.

The three top-ranked teams were Western Kentucky, Eastern Kentucky and Louisville. Victory for either Western or Eastern seemed likely to bring a bid from the National Invitational Tournament at Madison Square garden.

Joe Brown Honored By New Stadium

PAULDING, Feb. 24 — (INS)—Joe E. Brown, former baseball player and actor, will be on hand in Holgate July 24 for the dedication of the stadium named in his honor.

Ernie Kulman, state commissioner of semi-pro baseball, said this week that the National Baseball Congress offices in Wichita, Kan., had notified him of Brown's plans to attend the dedication.

The 14th annual Ohio State baseball tournament opens the same date at Holgate.

The NBC plans ceremonies honoring Joe as an outstanding sandlot and professional player, a successful club owner and the sponsor of numerous baseball benefits.

Full recognition will be paid Joe's services a few weeks after the stadium dedication.

J. G. Taylor Spink, of St. Louis, NBC global commissioner and publisher of The Sporting News, will award Brown a trophy at the opening of the 15th annual national tournament in Wichita Aug. 19.

The Ohio champion team is slated to play the tournament opener.

Hunting Licenses May Be Like Drivers -- Test To Get It, Violation Loses It

By FRITZ HOWELL Ohio AP Sports Editor

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Your Ohio hunting license may soon be like your automobile driver's license—a test to get it, a violation to lose it.

The possibility popped up as the League of Ohio Sportsmen's 41st annual convention opened, with Chairman Frank Atwood of Columbus explaining the group's legislative committee was "merely considering ways of combating the rise in hunting and fishing violations."

Committee spokesmen said the group was considering suggesting an amendment to the hunting-fishing law which would provide penalties for holders of licenses with an automatic renewal. New applicants, or holders of lapsed licenses, would be required to pass an examination.

Type of examination, or subjects to be covered, was not disclosed.

Ralph Sonborn of Columbus, former president of the league, said the group might also suggest that each license carry an agreement, to be signed by the hunter, that the license be cancelled for two, three or five years upon conviction of a violation.

League officials agreed it was a "radical departure, but something must be done to halt the increase in violations."

The license angle was on off-shoot of the league's annual "gripe" session, limited last night to a colorful discussion of farmer-hunter relations.

The hunters—the city ones—spent most of the evening courting the land owners on whose property they like to hunt, but the farmers remained a bit aloof.

The one thing the farmers don't like, the 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. hunting hours, which they said kept their school-age sons from hunting except on Saturday "when all the city guys with their dogs are filling the fields."

They also cited instances of cattle and other stock being killed by pheasant and rabbit hunters, of flagrant cases of trespassing, of hen pheasants being slaughtered, fences cut or torn down, crops damaged.

E. R. Cook of New Knoxville, said he generally allowed eight hunters on his 400-acre dairy farm, but that 30 or 40 generally found their way on his land. He cited the danger of Bangs disease or hog cholera germs being carried to his stock on the shoes of hunters from other farms. He said hunters had killed two of his cows, but didn't specify when.

Cosmos D. Blubaugh of Danville, listed in the program as Ohio's outstanding farmer, said he had given an Akron man named "Bill" permission to hunt squirrel on his land, but that "Bill" came in the back way with four companions, a tent and other equipment, and was going to stay two weeks. Blubaugh said he ordered "Bill" off the property.

A Champaign farmer named "Sam" charged that the "game laws are being mismanaged. The farmers could solve the whole thing by getting together and banning all hunters."

The hunters, most of them, agreed they'd have to stay on the good side of the farmers or leave their dreams of the fireplace.

Carl McMunn of Cleveland, editor of the Ohio Farmer, told the hunters they'd "be out of business" unless they satisfied the farmer.

Blubaugh, 19 years a city dweller and 24 years a farmer, suggested the hunters bring along a box of candy or some other gift for the land owner. John Anderson of Port Clinton said it might be well to pay the farmer—from club funds if necessary—for maintaining game cover on his land. Another sportsman said it might help to allow the farmers' sons to hunt at all hours, and to give the adult farmers a half-day of unmolested shooting before the season opens.

Not all the city folk were so favorable to the farmers. One Toledoan said some farmers were game law violators. He said he knew one who had 75 pheasants in his cold locker before the season opened, and that he knew others who hunted on Sundays.

Another said he thought the farmer was educated to expect a "divvy" out of everything since "the government paid him for burning his wheat and plowing under his pigs."

Dudley Briggs of Fayette county, a farmer, said 70 per cent of the hunting violations were by city folk, and that "if they quit shooting those hen pheasants we'd have a big crop within a couple of years."

All agreed that children, in schools and churches, should be taught sportsmanship.

And Lew Klewer, outdoor editor of the Toledo Blade, said hunter-farmer relations were an all-year chore.

"Get friendly with the farmer in the spring and you'll get an invitation to hunt in the fall," Lew said.

Biggest applause of the evening went to a hunter who urged that the ban on quail and dove shooting be lifted.

Fishing Time Nears

The springlike winter weather which continues to torment spring fishermen has started an early run on fishing licenses throughout the state, according to reports reaching Division of Conservation headquarters in Columbus.

More than 600,000 fishing licenses for the 1949 season have already reached the state's 2,300 agents which include hardware stores, sporting goods stores, bait dealers, grocery stores and other merchants.

Licenses are available also at township and county clerk's offices, offices and all division of Conservation branch offices throughout the state.

Anglers will need a new license to fish beginning March 1. The fishing license year now begins on March 1 and runs through the last day of February the following year.

The cost of this year's license remains the same as last year, $1.19 and all persons 16 years of age and over are required to secure a license for fishing except landowners and tenants together with members of their immediate families who fish on lands upon which they reside.

Eastern Schools Boast Most Prolific Stars

Tony Lavelli of Yale Top In College Scoring Bracket

NEW YORK, Feb. 24 — (UP)—Eastern college basketball circles are without a major powerhouse team this season, but they certainly boast the most prolific scorers.

Seven of the first 10 scorers among the major college units are coming "down east," the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau pointed out today.

Leading the pack is Tony Lavelli, the old blue from Yale who has averaged 21.8 points, including games played Feb. 19. Lavelli's hook shots, thrown with a stiff-arm motion, have netted 479 points in 22 games.

Pushing Lavelli for the top spot was Paul Arizin of Villanova. The slow-footed but sure-handed Wildcat center, who recently climbed from 27th place to fourth place by

Denison Looking For Two Coaches

GRANVILLE, Feb. 24—(UP)—Athletic Director Walter J. Livingston of Denison university said today he was hot on the trail of a new head football coach but declined to identify any candidates for the post.

Denison lost its second head coach within a week when Wayne (Woody) Hayes resigned yesterday to become head football coach at Miami university. Last week Rix Yard resigned as basketball coach to become head freshman football coach at the University of Pennsylvania.

"We'll have to do something soon," Livingston said. He pointed out that the Big Red will start spring football drills March 1. Only one month will be devoted to grid practice under Ohio conference regulations.

"We were hopeful up until Woody's appointment by Miami that he would be back next year," Livingston said. "But now we must fill the vacancy, and we can't waste any time. We have a list of 25 or more applicants."

The athletic director indicated, however, that the final choice may not be made from the current list.

TEXAS OUSTED AS TOURNEY HOPEFUL

Rice Dumps Longhorns, Puts Them Out of NCAA List: Aggies Get Re

NEW YORK, Feb. 24—(AP)—Texas, one of the brightest prospects back in December, is out of the running for the coming NCAA basketball eliminations.

The Longhorns, ranked 20th in the most recent Associated Press basketball poll, were dumped last night by Rice, 65-49. This eliminated Texas from the Southwest conference race and automatically from NCAA consideration. The district six NCAA bid usually goes to the conference champion.

The victory gave Rice a chance to tie Arkansas for the conference lead provided it can beat the Razorbacks Saturday.

Baylor, defending southwest conference champs, stayed in the running with a 47-38 triumph over Southern Methodist.

Meantime, three of the nation's top ten teams, strengthened their bids for the post-season tourneys.

The Oklahoma Aggies, ranked No. 3, smacked Oklahoma, 46-36, to avenge a 54-41 beating by the Sooners several weeks ago. If the Aggies can again whip St. Louis, ranked No. 2, on Saturday they appear certain to appear in either the NCAA or National Invitation tourney at Madison Square garden.

WOULD OUTLAW BASEBALL CODE

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 24—(AP)—The reserve clause in baseball players' contracts would be outlawed by a measure now before the New York state legislature.

Companion bills to ban such agreements were introduced yesterday by Senator Alfred E. Santangelo and Assemblyman Louis A. Cioffi, New York Democrats. They said in a joint statement that the current court fight over the clause between Danny Gardella and the New York Giants prompted them to sponsor the measure.

The reserve clause provides that after a player has signed a contract with a major league organization he must stay within that organization until it releases him. He may not negotiate with another baseball club while he is under contract. The present system is "akin to peonage and in restraint of trade," the sponsors said.

The Gardella case, they declared, "dramatically highlights the monopolistic practice of the baseball solons who not only deny permission to players to play with other major league teams, but also actively influence other minor league ball clubs and sand lots teams from engaging the services of those ball players who dare assert their right to earn a livelihood against the wishes of the baseball solons."

STROEBEL LEAVES BARBERTON FOR OSU COACHING JOB

COLUMBUS, Feb. 24—(INS)—Harry L. Stroebel, 40-year-old Barberton High school coach, was named today as head mentor of the Ohio State Freshman football squad.

Stroebel, who won the title "Ohio's high school coach of the year" in 1947, produced a state champion eleven at Barberton two years ago and taught the Bellevue basketball squad when it took the state crown in 1945.

Stroebel's appointment is subject to approval March 14 by university trustees.

Assisting the new Frosh mentor will be newly-appointed backfield Coach Gene Fekete.

Stroebel succeeds Sam Selby, who resigned recently.

The new gridiron teacher graduated from Miami U. When he left his alma mater, he took his wife, Marjorie, and nomadized to coaching spots at Brilliant, North Canton and Louisville.

The old man—he has two children—then migrated to Orville, where he settled for five years;

moved to Bellevue for the next four years, then landed in Barberton.

He is a member of the board of directors of the Ohio High School Football Coaches association and a member of the National Football Coaches association.

Bachelor Diamond-Miner Earns $100,000 Daily

At One Time Penniless, Scientist Has World's Best Diamond Mine

By JAMES POWERS

NEIROGI, Kenya, British East Africa — (INS) — The richest man in the world—or at least the latest candidate for the office—is a tall, dark and handsome Canadian of 41. He is also a bachelor.

The line forms on the right, girls. The spot on the left is where this generally-unknown man, Dr. John Thornburn Williamson, picks up his earnings at the end of each day. Said earnings amount to about $100,000 each and every day.

That's right. Not $100,000 yearly, monthly or weekly, but daily. He could earn in excess of $50,000,000 a year. The sandy desert soil he tills yields a lovely crop. Diamonds. The most perfect diamonds in the world.

And — take hope, gentlemen of as yet undiscovered fortune—eight years ago this same man was so poor he could not afford to buy tires for his single truck. It was running on the rims when Dr. Williamson sat beneath a giant baobab tree in western Tanganyika and let his hands course disconsolately through the dusty earth.

Tired, broke, discouraged and discouraged. He knew there were diamonds there someplace. He was a scientist, B. A. B. Sc., Ph. D., graduate of McGill University, Toronto. Not just a reckless prospector hoping for the best on the basis of legends and folklore of the country. He was sure, scientifically sure, there were diamonds in this choking earth in which he had expended his modest funds.

As Dr. Williamson mused that day, he looked at the dirt in his hands. Something glinted. He picked it out and realized quietly he had found his diamonds. Now, eight years later, the Williamson mines at Shinyanga, Tanganyika, contain enough gems to send the world price of diamonds plummeting. If this youngish doctor of philosophy pleases. And he owns it all himself, without a partner or co-owner of any kind.

Williamson is carefully reticent about his income. I have seen however a picture of a plateful of diamonds worth $400,000. It represented three days output of the Williamson mines. These diamonds have been taken from within a few feet of the surface with no more complicated machinery than a steam shovel and wire-mesh sorter.

Unskilled Labor Used

Completely unskilled African labor is used throughout. Only a few white men are employed at the mines. The African labor comes to work naked and is supplied with specially designed overalls in which there are no pockets.

The natives are exceedingly well paid and the housing and food supplied them is better than that enjoyed by many white persons in East Africa. Williamson, for example, flies a special plane weekly from Tanganyika to Kenya to keep the African employees in fresh vegetables.

Williamson's output of the mine depends only on his wishes and his agreements. The world's diamond market is controlled by a carefully

At the latest count, there were about 16,210,000 members of United States labor unions. The 16 largest account for more than half the total membership. Of these, eight are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, five with the Congress of Industrial Organizations, two are independent and one—the Trainmen—is part of the Railway Brotherhoods. The AFL claims 7,220,500 members, the CIO 6,500,000, another 2,050,000 belong to independent unions, and 440,100 to the Railway Brotherhoods. Figures from the National Industrial Conference Board.

regulated syndicate, anxious that the world shall not be flooded with the precious stones and that the members of the syndicate maintain high standards.

Williamson is in agreement with the syndicate. At the moment he has agreed not to supply more than ten per cent of the world's diamonds. This guarantees that the shower of stones he could release on the world will not depress the stabilized price of the sweet young thing's June trophy.

The mine is notable on several counts, including the ease with which the diamonds are found, with about as much difficulty as locating a pretty sea-shell on the ocean beach. But what makes diamond miners and prospectors drool most is the high content of gem stones found among Williamson's diamonds.

Kimberly Mine Considered Best

The great Kimberly mine in the Union of South Africa was considered one of the world's most valuable until the discovery of the Shinyanga mine. In the diamonds found at Kimberly, ten per cent are gem stones and 90 per cent industrial. At Williamson's mine in Tanganyika it is just the opposite, 90 per cent gems and ten per cent industrial.

Dr. Williamson looks a great deal like the American aviation and movie magnate, Howard Hughes, only not so tired. He is tall, lean, dresses casually but well in tweeds and flannels, and talks quietly with a voice like Gary Cooper's.

He has black hair with just a trace of gray in it and a bushy black Guardsman's moustache. In other words the kind of man at whom anxious mothers cast despairing glances. All that and money, too.

Williamson receives an average of 30 proposals a day through the mails. To boost the allure many of these are accompanied by cakes, candies, and other foods. But Dr. Williamson isn't having any. He purposely stays at his remote mine most of the time.

But the ladies will be relieved to know Dr. Williamson has other eccentricities other than refusing to take seriously marriage proposals from people he has not met. He refused a few weeks ago an outright offer for his mine that would have relieved him of financial worries for several generations. The offer was for $200,000,000. Dr. Williamson said he thought he would be happier digging his own diamonds.

Grade School Show To Depict Nations

LEETONIA, Feb. 24—An all-grade pageant, "A Day With the United Nations," will be presented in the High school auditorium at 8 p. m. Monday.

Mrs. Minnetta Miller, supervisor of grade school music, will direct the production. Each grade will represent a country in the United Nations.

The program will consist of songs, folk dances and costumes of 14 different countries. The finale will symbolize the aim of the United Nations, which is peace and unity among the nations of the world. Members of the six grades at the South Side building and the four grades at the North Side building will take part.

Miss Patsy Sipe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Sipe, has been taken to the Youngstown North Side hospital for treatment for an infected ear.

Past Matrons club of Leetonia chapter, O.E.S., met at the home of Mrs. Marie Davis Wednesday evening, with Mrs. R. C. Shive associate hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Sauerwein have been advised of the birth of a daughter, to be called Doris Lou, to their daughter and son-in-law, Lt. and Mrs. John A. Duncan at Ft. Monmouth, N. J.

Relatives have been advised of the birth of a son at Mercy hospital, Canton, Feb. 14, to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Marshall. Mrs. Marshall is the former Anne Morell.

The Coterie club was entertained at the home of Mrs. Dale McCormick Monday evening.

$832 For Dimes Drive

Andrew Feyock, March of Dimes chairman for this district, announced a total of $832.30 has been given to Joseph Leeson, county chairman.

Of the total, Leetonia contributed $707.25; Washingtonville $101.50 and Franklin Square $23.55. Many donations are still being sent to the county treasurer.

Women's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist church was entertained at the home of Mrs. K. E. Birney Tuesday evening with Mrs. J. H. McDonald associate hostess.

It's Changed Now

The lower classes were not allowed to fight during a war for 200 years' during the Middle Ages. Townsmen who agreed to supply military units to the great lords in return for fief charters were the one exception. Most of the fighting was done by armed knights on horseback.

Air Demons Of Future Test Speed On Dry Lake

Secret Planes Get Tryout
At Muroc As U. S. Builds
Its Defense Barrier

BY LINCOLN HAYNES
United Press Staff Correspondent
MURROC, Cal.—(UP)—America's fighting planes of the future are flying for the first time in the hit, thin air above a closely-guarded base here on the lonely Southern California desert.

Eleven miles long and five-and-a-half miles wide, Muroc Dry Lake forms the largest natural landing field in the world. Before World War II, speed-happy "hot-rod" drivers flocked here for auto races against time on the smooth surface.

But Muroc has changed since 1941. The tiny bombing range of World War I has expanded until Muroc Air Force base is Uncle
Sam's largest flight test center.

Secret Planes Tested

The hangars and engineering buildings today house some of the nation's prime secrets. In super-sonic jet and rocket plane developments. The "hot-rod" have been moved five miles away to Rosamond Dry Lake, and residents of the few nearby towns have grown accustomed to seeing test flights of craft that seem to be straight out of a cartoon fantasy.

Only about 70 miles from Los Angeles, the nation's aircraft production center, Muroc has the perfect geographic and atmospheric setup for speed flying. The current world speed record of 670.95 m.p.h.
was set here last Sept. 15 by Maj.
Richard L. Johnson in a production model of the North American's jet F-88. Two other previous marks were knocked off last summer at Muroc.

Young Capt. Charles Yeager first cracked the sonic barrier here a year ago in the air force's first rocket ship, a Bell X-1. Designed to hit 1,700 m.p.h., the plane is still being tested by the air force doesn't say how fast it's going these days.
It probably has done at least 900 miles an hour.

Many Types Seen

Other models now undergoing tests at Muroc include the Northrop YB-49 jet Flying Wing, the blood-red Douglas 4-558 Skyrocket (former speed record holder), D-558-2 Skyrocket, XB-43 and XF2-DL for the Navy; Curtiss-Wright XF-87; Mc-
Donnell XF-85 and XF-88; North American XB-45 and XF-86, and Northrop XP-59.

Such standbys as the Lockheed
P-80 Shooting Star and the Douglas C-47 cargo plane are Muroc graduates. The P-80 is being tested now with the "flying stovepipe" ram-jet engine theoretically capable of 5,000 m.p.h.

Along with stepped-up security regulations, a post-war expansion boom has hit Muroc. Officials plan to move the railroad that now bisects the hard-baked adobe lake and double the base's present 250 square miles.

A "secret city" of 5,000 soldiers and civilians, plus their dependents, will be needed to run the giant operation within five years. Like

CONGRESS IS SEATED

In Washington,
Congress' medical adviser
said the present
seats in the Capitol are bad for the health. So the senators and representatives will get new seats, like the one Rep.
Katherine St.
George, New York Republican,
is trying out.
Rep. Cecil
Hardin, Indiana
Republican,
waits for Mrs.
St. George's reaction.

bigger and older communities. Muroc already has a critical housing shortage.

"X" for Experimental

Most west coast and some eastern aircraft companies bring their dream babies, still sporting "X"
(for experimental) numbers, to Muroc for flight testing. Many are assembled on the base by company personnel.

Company test pilots put each plane through exhaustive ground and flight tests before the air force
"glamor boys" take over. These youngsters, most in their early 20's, know their planes from the drawing boards up.

There is the ticklish job of riding a ship several miles aloft and then pushing it through the sonic wall, where the pessimists used to predict a plane would shatter into splinters. It took Capt. Yeager and others like him to prove them wrong, the hard way.

FAIRFIELD

The Fairfield Township P. T. A. met in the school auditorium last Wednesday evening. John Heinzelman presided in the absence of William Knuth, president, who is vacationing in Florida. Rev. Laugh-ner, Leetonia, gave the devotionals.
After a short business meeting, Mrs.
Roy Cope, program chairman, presented an enjoyable program.

Miss Loretta Greenstein announced the Senior class play, "Heart Trouble."

The Fairfield Music Boosters organization presented its minstrel show in the New Waterford school auditorium last Wednesday evening to a large and appreciative audience. Mr. G. Robert Smith directed.

Members of the minstrel cast, with director and Mrs. Smith, enjoyed a "hard times" party in the school gym Saturday night. All came in appropriate costumes and each brought a "poke lunch." The lunches were all placed on a long table and when the time arrived for refreshments each one selected a package. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Reuben Russell and Mrs. D.
L. Brinker and there were not a dull moment because of the many games which were planned. Many useful prizes were awarded the winners.

Mrs. H. H. Pierson, Headwaters farm, was hostess to associate members of the B.G.N. club at her home last Wednesday for an all-day meeting. A coverdish dinner was enjoyed at noon and needlework afforded pastime for the afternoon.
Mrs. John Robinson will receive the club Wednesday, March 16.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Shockley of Hagerstown, Md., and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Shockley, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Zellers,
Sunday evening.

Mrs. Stevin Blosser spent Saturday with her brother, Paul Clark,

Investigate What Has Happened To All The Sardines

By PAUL F. ELLIS

LA JOLLA, Calif., Feb. 24—(UP)—A crew of sea-going scientific detectives is on the trail of the disappearing California sardine.

It is serious business, not only for the west coast states but for the nation. Sardines have been one of the most important food fish for years.

But the sardines are eluding the best of commercial fishermen. Before the war, the catch was between 500,000 and 1,000,000 tons a year. Now it has dropped to about 100,000 tons.

It has been a staggering blow to the west coast fisheries and the state of California has appropriated $500,000 to the Scripps Institute of Oceanography of the University of California to track down the missing sardines.

It is the first time that basic research into the movements and populations of food fish has been done on a wide scale. It is not a California problem, according to Dr. Roger Revelle, associate director of the institute, but a world-wide problem.

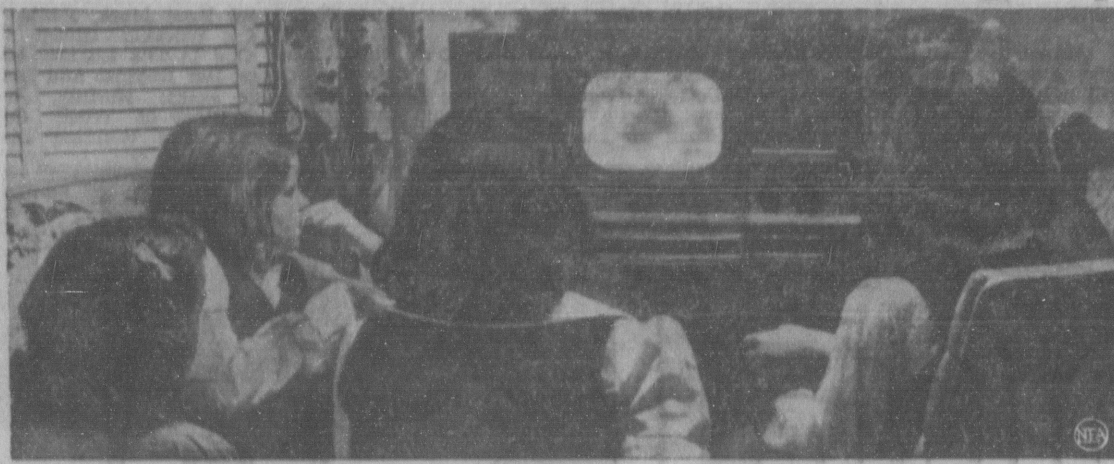

"The ocean has no boundaries," he said. "What we find out here will be applicable to peoples all over the world."

Before the war, he said, there were years when the sardine population dropped, but there was usually recovery. The problem now is to determine what causes the fluctuations, particularly whether fishing itself has an effect on the population of fish—and if so, what should be done about it.

Another problem is to determine where the sardines go and what water conditions are best for them.

To settle these problems scientists here are going to sea, taking samples of sea water, testing the

Television: Revolution In Growing Up

Stay-at-homes: With television in the middle of the picture of growing up, experts expect it to "bring the children back into the home," reversing a 20th century American trend.

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Television is destined to revolutionize the business of growing up in America.

That's the opinion of America's leading educators, child psychologists, who almost unanimously agree that the growth of television will bring remarkable improvements in the mass education, training and entertainment of youth.

"Educators are determined not to let the advantages that television could bring slip through their fingers the way they missed out on developing radio as an education medium," says Leonard W. Mayo, vice president of Western Reserve university and president of the Child Welfare League of America. He adds:

"We have in television a limitless new instrument for improving all phases of youth development from cradle to maturity. It can solve the country's lack of educational and cultural facilities and reverse the 20th century American trend of children spending more and more time out of the home. It'll bring the children back into the home."

Western Reserve, many other leading colleges and universities and scores of state and local boards of education have extensive video projects under way, aimed at developing the best techniques for teaching and finding constructive entertainment for children of all ages. Included are plans for programs which demonstrate child care to new mothers, give art lessons, show how to sew and cook, teach children manual and artistic skills, and teach history by showing famous paintings.

Most of the complaints which have been voiced against the influence of television on children are explained away by the experts. One is that prolonged viewing will ruin a child's eyes. Studies to date at least have revealed no injury to any child's eyes as a result of watching video programs. George S. Stevenson, medical director of the National Committee on Mental Hygiene, takes apart another oft-heard criticism.

"They ask what will happen to the development of the American home if the family sits two or three hours in the dark in silence each night. In the first place, I don't think that that will happen. It is contrary to the natural human craving for human contact. And people have a remarkable ability to make satisfactory adjustments to any new situation or problem. It will probably develop that good television will inspire more and better conversation in the American home than there ever has been."

There have been widespread complaints that parents with television sets that getting their children away from the programs has become a major discipline problem. A noted child psychologist's answer is that the urge to watch a television program is no greater than any other urge, and can easily be remedied if parents establish fixed routines and rules regarding bedtime and program watching.

Experts believe that parents will put considerably more pressure on television than was put on radio for more acceptable children's programs. A psychologist explains:

"It took Americans parents a long time before it dawned on them what gangster and murder programs on the radio were doing to the minds of their children. When they finally became aroused they were able to force the networks to clean things up. But in television the effects of this type of program on the children will be detected immediately. What they see as well as hear influences their behavior almost immediately. When television programs get harmful you can bet that there will be quick and indignant outcries."

An educator claims that television station owners will have a greater incentive than radio stations to cooperate with schools in presenting educational material.

"At the present cost of producing a television show," he says, "it is doubtful whether advertising revenue alone will be able to support a full day's schedule of programs. If schools or other institutions can supply good, constructive programs part of the day, free in exchange for the time, television stations will probably be interested. In radio, however, it is usually a question of not having enough time to sell to sponsors. Squeezing in public service broadcasts is an effort."

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

How's Your Listening Time?

Buck Howell and I were in Baltimore last week. Dropped in at Bob's diner where some friends were sitting around talking about whether to sell hogs new or wait.

Buck plunges right into the discussion. He's lecturing away when suddenly they all stand up and start stomping their feet like it was an Indian war dance.

I'm flabbergasted. But Buck only looked sheepish and explains, "Guess I was talking again, when I should-of been listening. When a person's talking time gets out of line with his listening time around here, the gang reminds him by standing up and stomping."

From where I sit, that's a good system. Everyone has a right to his opinions—but others have a right to theirs, too—whether it's deciding between to sell or not to sell, apple pie or cherry pie, or a glass of mellow beer or cider. Life's more interesting that way, and hang it if you don't sometimes learn something!

Alcoholics Given Chance, Not Jail Cell In Seattle

SEATTLE, Wash.—(NEA)—“What most of these men need is a chance. That's practically all they ever need. And we're here to give it to them,” said Seattle Police Sergeant Ross Burr.

The men are alcoholics, and the chance Seattle police are giving them is a sentence at the department's rehabilitation camp in the Duwamish Valley instead of in jail—a chance that today leads to jobs for many of the men.

One of the first to be organized by a municipal police force, Seattle's camp is an experiment in the correction of one of today's major social problems—chronic alcoholism. Although most police and medical authorities agree it is a disease, intoxication is still classified as a crime by city and state statutes.

Seattle found that nearly 70 per cent of the police effort and expense was being devoted to combating chronic alcoholism. But nothing was received in return. Men were picked up off the streets and sentenced to jail. After lying in a cell for 10 to 90 days, they were released to go on another bender.

Police decided to do something constructive to end this useless drain on their time and the city's money.

The Duwamish Valley camp was opened last year on land donated by the Seattle Police Athletic Association and financed by surplus funds from other city departments. It was staffed by carefully selected police officers with special training in handling alcoholics. Fifty prisoners, all serving 60 to 90 days for drunkenness, were moved to the camp. There the designation became “patients.”

For the length of their sentence, the men lived and worked, not under a jailor, but with men they regarded as friends and advisors. Given a balanced, healthy diet and regular hours, they were soon in good physical condition. Since a chronic alcoholic usually suffers from malnutrition, he must be restored to normal health before the other aspects of his problem can be solved. The men are not coddled nor handled as erring children. They have vigorous outdoor work to perform in keeping with their condition.

After physical reconditioning comes mental rehabilitation. Each man is interviewed and questioned concerning his needs and problems. If he has a family problem, is out of work, or feels physically handicapped, he now has a chance to talk it over with a sympathetic advisor. Often the answer to some disturbing question, and some concrete help in solving it, is all that is needed, and escape through alcohol is no longer necessary.

When the first group's sentences neared an end, unions and welfare agencies were contacted for job possibilities. Men completing their sentences today often have jobs waiting for them when they are discharged. They go from camp to work.

Army Still Seeks Lost U. S. Airmen In Pacific

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—United States Army personnel are reported by Radio Australia to be conducting a search in Queensland for American airmen lost in the war.

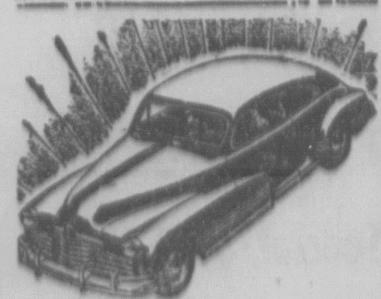

The project, part of a wide-range search through the islands of the Pacific, has produced “gratifying” results, Capt. E. L. Harrison, in charge of the mission, said.

“Often the party only had information that a plane with so many people in it had left an airfield for a certain destination and that it had not arrived,” Capt. Harrison said.

Sometimes the wreck of a plane was found unexpectedly, he added.

“For instance, recently a stockman searching for cattle near Brandenberg in Queensland found an American plane lost five years ago,” Harrison said.

Burial, he said, takes place either overseas or in the United States, according to the wishes of the next-of-kin.

Taft Labels New Truman Proposals As "Socialistic"

CLEVELAND, Feb. 24 — (AP)—President Truman's program is based on "socialization and regimentation" and would burden the taxpayer with a $60 billion budget within five years, claims Sen. Robert A. Taft.

Addressing about 1,500 persons at a Cuyahoga county Republican dinner here Tuesday, the GOP senate leader said his party's congressmen must defeat the President's legislative program.

For it, he said, they must substitute a program based on protection of the rights of the average man and designed for administration by state and local authorities with federal aid.

The Cincinnati senator said President Truman's program, if enacted by congress, would cause complete reorganization of the nation, intrude the government into business, and greatly increase the tax load on middle and lower income groups. The Truman program, he said, would require a $50 billion dollar budget immediately and $60,000,000,000 within five years.

"A permanent basis for real social welfare can be laid within the principles of liberty," Taft declared.

The Republicans, he said, believe in protecting the rights guaranteed the individual by the Taft-Hartley law, holding down taxes, and opposing controls of governmental bureaus over the farmer, the housewife and the businessman. He added: "We believe in an affirmative program for social welfare based on federal aid to states to enable the states to do a more complete job in providing medical care for the needy; a better and more complete system of old age pensions; federal aid to education, particularly in the poorer states; federal aid to provide public housing for the lowest income groups."

"This program is based not on the aim of paying the expenses of people able to pay their expenses themselves, nor on limiting their ability to spend money, but rather on the elimination of hardship and poverty."

Boyle's COLUMN

BY HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK—(AP)—Once upon a time there was a man who learned how to make gold.

He was a poor bookkeeper, tired of poverty and weary of keeping other men's books.

"Why can't I learn to make gold?" he asked himself one day. "Man can do anything he sets his mind to. The Germans made butter from coal, we make bombs from atoms."

He didn't want to make enough gold to throw the world's money systems out of kilter. No, he intended to keep his discovery—when he made it—a secret. He just planned to turn out enough gold for his own modest needs. A million here, a million there.

So he went to a department store and bought himself a chemistry set. He wore out the seat of his pants at the public library reading volumes on alchemy and the transmutation of metals. Finally he decided that the easiest thing to turn into gold was quicksilver.

"All I have to do is to find a way to make it jell and turn yellow," he said.

HE SET UP a laboratory in his basement and went to work. Evening after evening he labored there alone past midnight. Feverishly he stewed up stinking dresses of chemicals until his home smelled like a glue factory. Into each batch he hopefully poured a little quicksilver—with no result.

His quest became a mania. He quit his job after the 3,001st unsuccessful experiment. After that he stayed in the basement night and day. He grew thin and haggard. One morning his wife came into the laboratory as he was about to begin his 5,000th experiment. He was out of fancy chemicals and had only kitchen ingredients left.

He poured the last of his quicksilver into a mortar. He put in a pinch of salt and a spoonful of baking soda. Idly he stirred this batch with his finger. Then his wife said quietly:

"There isn't a penny left in the baby's bank, dear. There isn't a scrap of food in the house, and I know you are hungry."

The tears brimmed into her eyes. The man looked up and said:

"Why, honey, you're crying."

HE REACHED over with his blackened finger to wipe a tear from her cheek. As he touched it the tear turned to a bright hard yellow.

"Gold!" screamed the man. "Gold at last!"

He ran next door and borrowed an onion. He peeled it and held it up to his wife's eyes.

"Cry!" he commanded her. The onion brought the tears, all right, out when he dropped them into the mixture in the mortar—nothing happened.

Maddened, the man grabbed his wife's wrist and twisted it cruelly.

"Cry," he said. "Cry some more! I hate to do this, honey, but maybe it is tears of pain that make gold. I have to know."

The pain tears came. He let the small globules of his wife's agony fall into mortar. Nothing. It was the mixture as before.

The man gave a mighty oath of despair. He picked up the mortar and crashed it down on the stone table, smashing it to fragments. And then he ran upstairs.

The loyal wife watched him go, and pity for him replaced her pain. She bent over the table and wept for him alone—the husband she loved.

And as they fell into the spilled mixture, drop by drop, the tears turned to the color of the morning sun—the pure, bright gold of compassion.

Moral: A wife with a 24-karat heart is the poor man's true wealth.

Pupils Operate Store To Test Knowledge

PLYMOUTH, N. H.—A student-operated general store that takes learning out of the classroom into everyday experience was opened recently at Plymouth High school.

Organized by Philip Tappay, an instructor in the commercial departments, the store's different departments are staffed by students in appropriate courses.

The business organization set up the store and decides on policy. Salesmanship students work behind the counter while bookkeeping students keep the records and prepare monthly statements.

Selling everything from shoes to soft drinks, it is organized as a corporation and financed by stock sold to students.

"We try to stay away from book learning and make it a living experience," Tappay said.

Blind Student Shows You Can Beat Handicap

BY MARGARET WYNN
United Press Staff Correspondent
NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.—(UP)—Two years ago last June, Anthony Heaney left Niagara University to spend the summer vacation at his home in Geneva, N. Y.

He planned to return to the campus the following September to begin his sophomore year. Instead, he embarked on one of the hardest and most heart-breaking flights of a young person's life. He began a losing battle to save his eyesight.

This fall, 21-year-old Tony finally was back at Niagara as a sophomore. With him is his constant companion, a seeing-eye dog named Boots.

Things are quite different from Tony's freshman year. Instead of pen and notebook, he carries a Braille stylus to class. His books are put on records for him by the American Foundation for the Blind in New York City.

Still Working

But his ambitions are unchanged. He is still working toward a bachelor of science degree in social science. He still plays his trombone and writes for the college paper. And he still wants to become a newspaperman.

Although Tony lost the use of his left eye after an operation in 1944, he did not become completely blind until December, 1946, when four operations in Rochester proved unsuccessful. At first, he says, it was hard to take.

The next four months were the worst of his life. All hope for his sight was gone and he refused to leave his home or mix with friends.

But slowly his confidence began to return. He began taking long walks along Geneva's tree-shaded streets. He renewed old friendships. He learned Braille from a home teacher of the state commission for the blind. By last winter he had become public relations man for DeSales High School in Geneva.

Life Renewed

A visit to his former classmates at Niagara last spring renewed his desire to attend college. So, after a visit to Seeing-Eye Guide, Inc., at Morristown, N. J., where he acquired Boots, Tony is picking up the last pieces of the life he thought was ruined when he went blind.

He admits he's a trifle afraid of

The World Is Her Oyster

At 5 months, Juanita Evans is believed to be the youngest traveler ever to fly around the world. Her father, Kenneth Evans, is a ceramics engineer in Calcutta, India. With her parents, Juanita paused halfway in her globe-girdling expedition to visit relatives in Cleveland, O. Clutching her suitcase, she examines her route—Calcutta, Bangkok, Manila, Guam, Wake Island, Midway, Honolulu, Los Angeles and thence to Cleveland. The family will return to India via Europe.

returning to the world of classrooms and exams. But he wants no special privileges, and it worries him that many of his classmates are shy about approaching him.

"Most people don't know how to act," he said. "They think that you want to be left alone. They don't know how to break the ice. Most of the fellows give me a wide berth. Of course, the priests have been especially helpful."

Man-Made 'Quakes Get Oil

BAKERSFIELD, Calif.—A new method of seismic oil exploration was demonstrated here by Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, Stanford Research Institute. The process is designed to speed the search for petroleum reserves.

The Poulter method uses a pattern of small charges, detonated above ground in a manner producing man-made 'quakes' which penetrate deep into the earth and return reflections recorded by seismic equipment. A photographic record of the shock waves is read to determine structure of the earth's crust to and below levels at which oil is usually found.

The principal advantages of the method, Poulter said, are the large savings in eliminating most hole drillings costs, greater speed in mapping areas, and in the opening of new areas not presently suited to ordinary exploration.

Dog Barked Alarm

THANKS to the barking of "Trixie," who seems quite pleased with himself, two-year-old Gene Stanchfield is safe in the arms of his mother in their Elizabeth, N. J., home. The little boy had fallen into a shallow well playing with his pet and the dog's frantic barking attracted Mrs. Stanchfield. The boy barely escaped drowning. (International)

Treasure Hunters With Maps Seek $60,000,000

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—Gold doubloons, diamonds and rubies, $60,000,000 worth, will be the goal of an expedition led by Charles Forbes of San Francisco.

The treasure, the legendary "lost of Lima," has been eluding Forbes for the past ten years. This is his fourth expedition.

Forbes and his brother, James A. Forbes, wealthy Riverside citrus orchardists, have arranged for the expedition to sail aboard a converted landing craft, leaving from Los Angeles for Cocos Island, 310 miles southwest of Costa Rica.

Aboard the craft will be the latest metal detecting equipment and other machinery to aid in the treasure search. About 50 persons are making the trip, expected to last 90 days.

Charles Forbes, who received from an ancestor maps that were supposed to locate the treasure, returned early last fall from an unsuccessful attempt to locate the fabulous fortune.

Questions and Answers

Q—Is it possible for a salamander to be completely dried out and then brought back to life again when placed in water?

A—A salamander can stand considerable drying, as much as 50 per cent, and still recover. Complete removal of water cannot be achieved under ordinary experimental conditions, but if it could be done, the animal would probably not survive.

Q—How many North American peaks rise to 14,000 feet or more?

A—There are 80, of which the state of Colorado has 51.

Q—Has a sheriff more authority than a policeman?

A—Generally, yes, for in most cases the sheriff is the head peace officer of the county.

Q—Is there more than one magnetic North Pole?

A—The United States Air Force has discovered three magnetic North Poles instead of the one formerly recognized by science.

Q—Is it ever too cold to snow?

A—The idea that it can get too cold to snow is erroneous. It never gets too cold to snow, but it frequently gets too cold for snow to fall in "flakes."

Q—In what year were the most passenger automobiles manufactured in the United States?

A—The largest number of passenger cars was produced in 1929. In this year there were 4,587,400 cars manufactured.

City Managers' Greatest Troubles In Ohio Are Politics

By KEN DAVIS

COLUMBUS, Feb. 23—(AP)—Personalities, politics and power—these are the things causing most trouble for Ohio cities governed by the city manager plan.

It's the same old story: Greed, petty jealousy, factionalism, temperaments. City managers lose their jobs, grow crops of furious gray hair, snap at their wives and beat their children in distress over these entirely too-human problems.

And, sometimes, it must be noted, city managers, themselves, fall into these faults.

The council-manager form of government is, like most democratic institutions, a delicate balance of checks and powers. The International City Managers association defines it thus:

"The phrase council-manager government means that form of municipal government in which the people choose a legislative body, be it called a council, a commission or a board of directors, or something else, which employs a city manager to exercise the administrative and executive functions of the city."

The elected council enjoys legislative functions, making laws and the like; the city manager enjoys the function of enforcing and administering those laws. It is precisely where those functions separate that most of the trouble undergone by Ohio city managers have begun.

Oscar L. Fleckner, now state liquor director, ran into the question of proper authority at Springfield, where he was serving as city manager before he took his present post.

Most city manager movements—certainly all successful ones—give their managers complete freedom in an executive capacity, exercising control over only major policy matters and over net results of the city manager's stewardship.

Springfield has been shot with civic factions for a decade or more. Fleckner stoutly faced power-seeking factions and asked city council for a free hand. He got it. But, it is a recurring problem in the Clark county city.

Donald J. Wagner, suspended city manager of Portsmouth who is seeking relief in the State Supreme court, also ran into factionalism, into a smattering of personalities and into the ever-present specter of money.

"The future of the city manager form of government is in danger here," said Wagner as he fought back at certain councilmen.

Right or wrong, Wagner apparently couldn't achieve personal peace with Councilman Glen G. Kiser, who led the fight that resulted in Wagner's dismissal.

Right or wrong, Wagner ran into factionalism. Councilmen came near to blows in the climactic scene at which Wagner was suspended by a 4 to 2 vote.

Right or wrong, Wagner ran into money trouble. Some citizens objected to his $10,000 salary.

Wagner even hinted at obscure undercurrents about which it is possible only to speculate when he said:

"I was just given an opportunity to resign to save my self-respect. What kind of self-respect would I have if I admitted these charges, backed not by my peers but by some people who represent groups I'd rather not discuss?"

Councilman Kiser charged: "Wagner has entirely failed to cooperate with council in performing the duties prescribed by the city charter for his office and has preferred to ally himself and support the program of a very small group of citizens of the city without regard to the interests of the average citizen and wage earner."

"His attitude toward members of the council has not always been respectful and on repeated occasions Wagner has indicated his partiality in respect to the present official status of members of council."

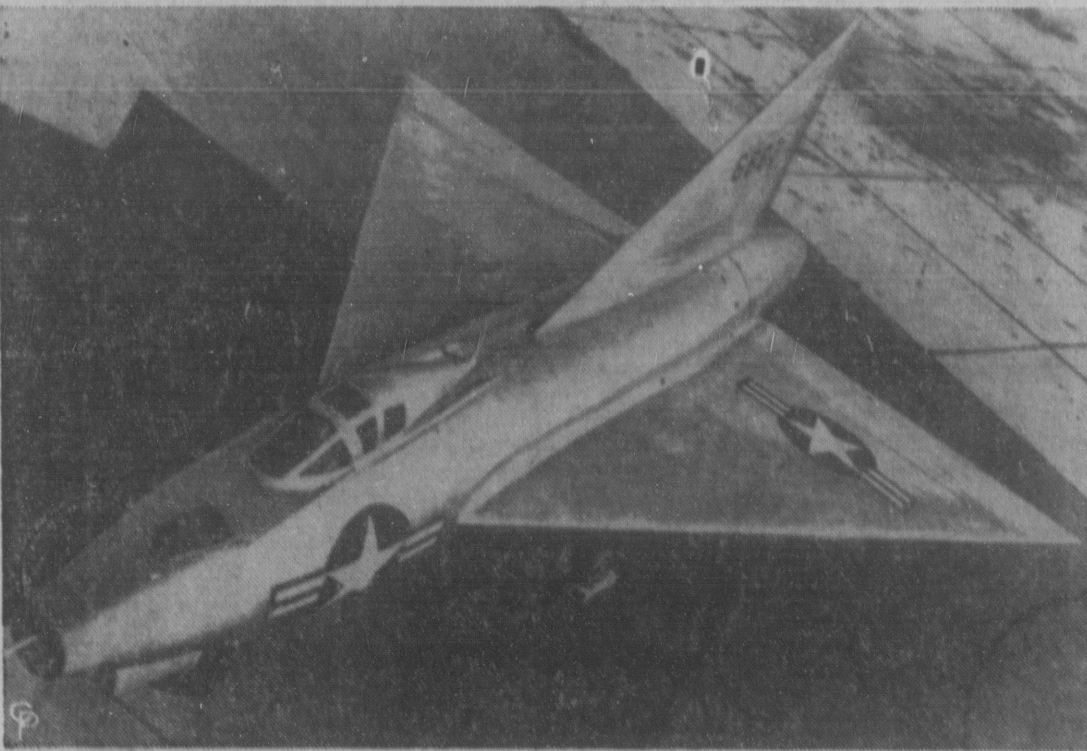

Howard P. Wilson resigned as manager of the City of Hamilton last August 1. He did so by request of city council. He had served 10 weeks. Hamilton has had five city managers in 10 years.

What is wrong? Well, certain informed Hamilton citizens say the trouble is gambling.

One newspaperman said: "If he (the city manager) enforces the laws one group is on his neck. If he doesn't, another element screams. He's damned if he does and damned if he doesn't."

Nineteen Ohio cities have city manager governments. They include Ashtabula, Bedford in Cuyahoga county, Cincinnati, Cleveland Heights, Dayton, East Cleveland, Gallipolis, Hamilton, Middletown, Oakwood, (Dayton) Painesville, Piqua, Portsmouth, Sandusky,

ARMY AIR FORCE SUBSONIC PLANE IN TEST FLIGHT

DESIGNED FOR HIGH SPEED in the subsonic speed range at altitudes of more than 40,000 feet, one of the radical new Army Air Force Delta Wing research planes is shown during tests now being held at the Muroc Dry Lake, Calif., desert testing station. The Model 7,002 has a triangular wing, the leading edge of which is swept back at an angle of 60 degrees. Previous maximum sweepback was 35 degrees. It is powered by a J-33 turbo-jet engine, has a tricycle landing gear and a jettisonable pilot's canopy. (Air Force Photo from International)

Springfield, Toledo, Washington Court House and Xenia.

Most of them operate like a well-oiled watch under the manager system. How they do it, the rules they follow and why strict rope-walking pays off is another story.

Everything Tried To Rid Capital of Pesky Starlings

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24—(UP)—If a law will do it, maybe the nation's capital will get relief from the pesky starlings which have ruined the front of many buildings in town.

Goodness knows just about everything else has been tried.

Small boys carried balloons on strings to scare 'em away. But the birds popped the balloons with their bills and caw-cawed in glee. One outfit in town tried to sell the government bird-proof roofing. Slick, galvanized, slanted metal built on the theory that if a bird can't sit down to roost it won't stick around.

One scientist appeared before a congressional committee last session and seriously suggested starting birth control. He proposed feeding the birds in tin pans, floating kernels of corn in oil. His theory was that the mama starlings would get their tail feathers oily and then go to sit on their eggs. The oil, he said, would fill the porous places in the eggs and the birds-to-be would never live to be.

One cop on the beat, who had his troubles with the pests, spent a couple of years inventing a mechanical owl which was placed on one big government building. The owl flapped its wings electrically every once in awhile. The starlings would flee. But they came back and, when learned to time the flaps, plucked the stuffed owl clean of its feathers. Nest material!

Law Introduced So now comes a law—Senate Bill 884—introduced by Sen. J. Howard McGrath, who also happens to be Democratic national chairman and chairman of the senate committee of the District of Columbia.

The senator's bill would make it lawful to haul off and kill a starling on sight—so long as you don't kill anything else.

Sen. McGrath said he understood the starling was an ornery critter but didn't know "too much about it."

He referred me to C. R. (Pink) Gutermuth, vice president of the Wildlife Management Institute. Other towns have starling trouble, too, it seems.

Gutermuth told about the terrible plight of the people in Indianapolis as result of the starling melée.

Every night about dusk, or roosting time, when the birds come in from stealing the farmer's grain, the big clock on top of the city hall stops.

The face of the clock is several feet in diameter and the minute hands on the four sides will accommodate several dozen starlings. Enough to weight down the hands and stop the works.

Gutermuth said the situation has caused all sorts of things—wives mad because their husbands are late meeting them downtown for dinner; the night shift being tardy for work in some of the factories.

All of this has forced the city to regulate at least once a day what is supposed to be a completely accurate clock.

"If the law in the District is passed—and works—I'm sure the City of Indianapolis would be interested," the wildlife man said.

SCREEN STAR, 12, SOBS AT WEDDING

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 24—(UP)—Twelve-year-old screen star Margaret O'Brien sobbed and refused to kiss her new step-father for photographers last night after witnessing the marriage of her mother to Orchestra Leader Don Sylvio here.

Mrs. Gladys O'Brien, mother of the child actress, married Sylvio in a private ceremony at the Colony hotel. The rites had been postponed three times.

Newsmen did not witness the marriage, but as they stood outside the door of the hotel suite they heard sobs from inside, apparently from Margaret.

Earlier reports said the child star opposed the wedding. After the ceremony she cried with emotion and embraced her mother, but would not kiss Sylvio for photographers.

The "singing" of katydid is achieved by the rubbing of their wings.

The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON — Some character in Paris with "dirty" books got a bright idea for making money fast and easy from a bunch of Americans he must have figured were chumps.

He got their names and addresses from an American directory and sent them letters creeping with sex, telling them if they put the price in a New York bank to his credit they'd get the books.

And he picked some lulu—the presidents of banks and universities, and federal judges—and they turned the letter over to James J. Doran, chief inspector, which means detective, for the U. S. Post Office department.

Nobody got the books because Doran stepped in and told the bank not to accept any American money for the Parisian character's account, so he's probably busy in his attic now thumbing through an English directory, picking out dukes to do a little business with.

NAILING THIS PROJECT was a pretty soft touch for Doran and the 815 inspectors under him because they have a pretty busy time, as this will show, running down not only the screwballs who send obscene mail but the lightfingered tribe who steal letters and stamps and rob the mails of things like money and checks which they can cash.

Every year about 4,000 people are convicted to doing the things mentioned above, but almost all of them are nailed for theft and not for sending obscene stuff like books, or pictures or letters to women.

The penalty for obscene mailing is up to five years in jail on each count, and a $1,000 fine. Last year 194 people were arrested for this, and 153 of them were convicted.

Doran and his crew keep a check on their own people, too, for the Post Office department, the biggest employer in the government, has 500,000 people working for it.

And every year about 400 postal employees—a fraction of one per cent of the total number—get nabbed for stealing on the job.

In every big post office in the country there's a "lookout gallery" where, without being seen themselves, Doran's detectives can watch the mail clerks at work, although Doran says they do this only when they're actually making an investigation.

But it's the crooked outsiders who give the inspectors the toughest time and one of the sweetest tricks ever invented by a thief is stealing checks from the mail and cashing them.

DORAN, A THIN man with long experience, says he had been after one mail thief for years and his men finally got him in Cleveland.

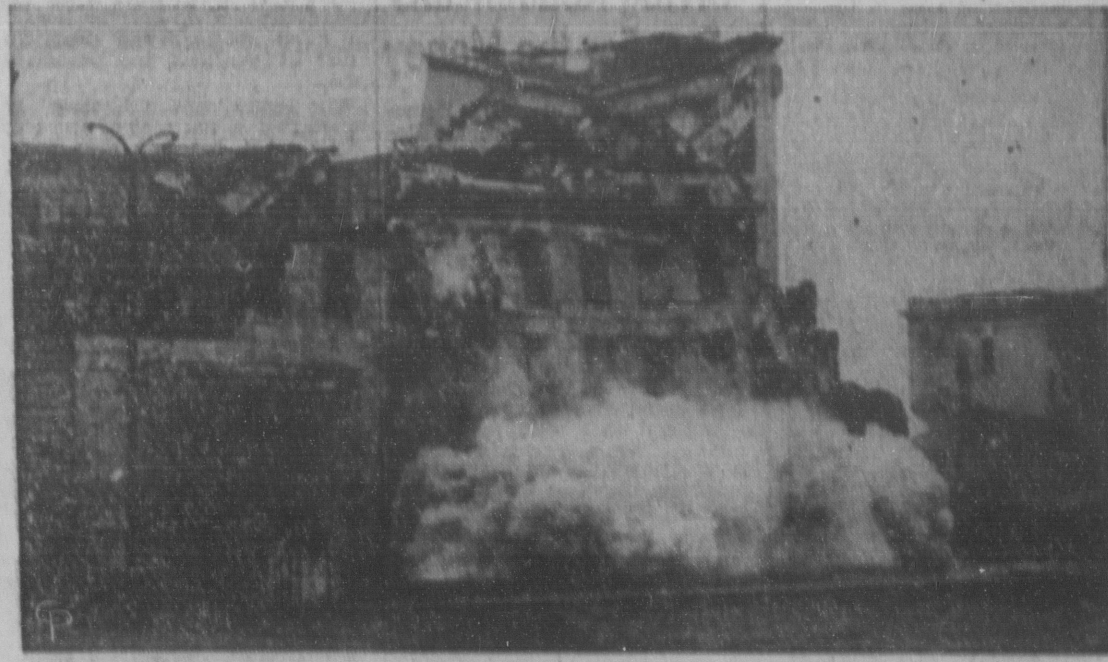

This one, Doran says, admitted he had been making about $10,000 a year for years, stealing letters, taking checks out of them, and then cashing them.

He didn't stay long in one place, but headed for California in the summer, moved across the southwest in the autumn and wintered in Florida, paying his way as he went by stealing mailed checks.

Another neat stunt, Doran says, is stealing department store bills from the mail. The crook who does this takes the bill right down to a department store and works it like this:

Say the bill is for $25. The crook produces a check, made out to him

BIG NOISE AT HITLER'S FAVORITE STAMPING GROUND

ONE OF HITLER'S favorite "stamping grounds," the balcony of the reich chancellery, is blasted to dust by Soviet demolition crew under decree that the partially wrecked building be entirely razed as part of plan to eliminate all landmarks of Hitler's rule. (International Soundphoto)

(he made it out to himself before he got to the store) for $150.

The department store loves him in a hurry for paying his bill so fast, and cashes his check, deducting $85 for the bill, and giving him $65 in cash which he earned by passing the phony check.

$25 A Month Hike Goal of CIO-URW

CLEVELAND, Feb. 24—(AP)—The CIO United Rubber workers are going after 25-cent hourly pay boosts and $100-a-month employer-paid pensions when they bargain this year for 180,000 rubber industry workers.

These two demands highlighted a seven-point program which the 164-delegate international policy committee of the union approved last night after two days of conference. The 20-member URW executive board then stamped its approval on the proposals.

President L. S. Buckmaster of Akron said the program was a constructive approach to the two most pressing problems facing our country—declining purchasing power and insecurity in old age.

Pensions Secondary
The pension program was made a secondary objective to the pay raises.

The union's contracts with three of the rubber industry's big four extend until the spring of 1950, but wage clauses may be opened for renegotiation at Firestone June 14, Goodyear June 17 and U. S. Rubber July 1. Goodrich and the URW are scheduled to begin contract negotiations May 23.

Pay rates in the rubber industry average $1.51 an hour for production workers, a union source said. The rubber workers have received 41 cents in hourly pay raises over the last three years.

Normal work schedules in the Akron area call for a 36-hour week of six days, but some plants now are operating only 24, 28 or 30 hours.

Has Double Tragedy

VERNAL, Utah—Her husband had recently been killed in a horse-roping accident—this mother of four—and she has been staying at the home of a relative in Naples, Utah.

But Mrs. Richard Brewer wanted to get back to her ranch residence at Willow Creek, an isolated little place some 60 miles from here.

With her small children, ranging in age from six months to six years, she set out for the desolate section. Her two brothers had been staying there while she was away. They would be surprised to see her. Telephone service to the area was almost non-existent and the roads which had been blocked by snow drifts had just been cleared.

When she arrived she found only a charred framework. Her home had been destroyed by fire New Year's eve while her brothers were out taking care of the livestock.

They Call Him 'Mellowed'

Hoover Enjoys New Role As Elder Statesman

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Herbert Hoover enjoys his role of the nation's leading elder statesman more than he did that of Chief Executive.

Just 16 years ago when he was elected from the White House, a tired, beaten, bitter man, most people assumed he was through. He hadn't enjoyed being President of the United States. Certainly nobody then would have glibly a wooden nickel on the chance that some day he'd be back in Washington, revitalized, happy, doing a great job for his country and enhancing his stature.

Hoover, Chief Executive: "Bull-headed" and hard-call-red.

Democrats and Republicans use the term "mellowed" to describe the change in Hoover. And it's pretty accurate.

In 1933 they called him "bull-headed" and "domineering." Today he's just "firm in his convictions." Then he was "cold" and "unfeeling." Now he's "keen" and "analytical." "Anti-social" has become "reserved."

Old friends attribute any mellowness to the fact that Hoover has enjoyed very much being Chairman of the Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the government. It's more his meat, they say, than the Presidency, although being the only living former President is probably the main thing that got him the job.

He's been pretty much his own boss running the commission, and he likes that. He divides his time between Washington and New York. In Washington he lives in a simple suite in the Mayflower hotel. His faithful secretary, Miss Bernice Miller, who has been with him for years, takes care of his personal affairs.

Usually he walks the few blocks between the Mayflower and the office building which houses the commission's quarters. No special secretarial staff is assigned to him here. Occasionally he'll borrow a typographer to dictate a letter. Mostly he visits the offices of the other commissioners in the morning and then attends formal meetings of the commission in the afternoon.

Hoover practically never eats alone. His meals are for business—with members of the commission or with key staff workers. At night he'll take a martini as a concession to the full life. Once in a while he'll accept a strictly social invitation to the house of an old friend like Rep. Christian A. Herter, of Massachusetts, or Tracey S. Voorhees, a New York attorney who is assistant to the Secretary of the Army.

The degree of unanimity his commission has achieved in reporting its findings is, to some extent, credited to Hoover's lunches. When he issues an invitation to the noon meal it's an order. And the person invited knows it's probably to iron out some difficulty or disagreement. The device has worked out very well.

In formal meetings of the group, Hoover has a tendency to try to dictate policy. It was only after some little bitterness during early sessions that he finally agreed to take a vote on disputed points. But he hasn't handled meetings without humor. He broke an impasse during one session with an anecdote that set the members howling.

The story concerned a small town postmaster who had been indicted for stealing several thousand dol-ars from the stamp till. Hoover was in the White House and the man's wife somehow got in to make a personal appeal. The basis of claiming her husband's innocence was this:

"Why, Mr. President, he's no thief. Every time he took a dollar out of that till he'd put in his I.O.U. for the exact amount."

Hoover's main base of operations these days is New York, although his permanent home is Stanford, Calif. His Gotham establishment is an apartment in the Waldorf-Astoria Towers. He pores over the reports and information he has picked up in Washington. Then he dictates his recommendations and writes letters. Two stenographers working full time handle this job. His working schedule in New York is just as strenuous as it is in Washington.

Nobody would say that Hoover doesn't look his 74 years. But he's as healthy and spry as the average man of his age. His ability to drive himself and others to get a job done is a startling contradiction to his years. If he looks younger in his pictures now than he did years ago, it's probably because he has stopped wearing old-fashioned high stiff collars and wears less conservative suits.

"Mellowed," as they say, and with newly-won respect for his work on the commission, Hoover looks back on an outstanding career. Born into a poor Quaker family broken up early by death, he worked hard during his youth to get a degree in engineering from Stanford. This led to mining engineering jobs all over the world.

After World War I he achieved international fame directing U. S. relief in Europe. It was mainly this that got him elected President in 1928. After his defeat in 1932 by Franklin Roosevelt, he has lived in semi-retirement, writing and traveling. His work on the commission started in 1947.

Turkish Democrats Giving Republicans Run For the Money

ISTANBUL—(U.P.)—The Democrats are catching up with the Republicans in Turkey so rapidly that they may end the Republic's 25-year-old semi-dictatorship. It looks like a political revolution.

Yet the Democratic party is only three years old. It was founded after the Republican president Ismet Inonu, led for western support in July, 1945, with an announcement that opposition parties would be permitted in Turkey for the first time since the Ataturk revolution in 1923.

The Democrats gained strength so rapidly that the Republican People's party government hastily called elections in July, 1946, lest the Democrats have more time to increase their membership.

Fraud Charged

The Democrats captured 50-odd seats in the 350-seat parliament and said they should have had more. They accused the government of fraud in counting the ballots and demanded drastic election reforms.

The government yielded to the extent of announcing a new election law permitting observation of the counting of ballots on the provincial level and higher. The Democrats retorted that the fraud simply would continue at the village and county level.

When a by-election was announced to fill 13 parliamentary vacancies, the Democratic chief, Celal Bayar, said his party would refuse to put up an candidate as a protest against the election law.

He sent speakers through the country to exhort the Republicans and urge the voters to stay away from the polls in protest against election abuses.

The Democrats contended that only seven per cent of qualified voters went to the polls. Even that figure was reached only by herding in street sweepers and practicing other irregularities, the Democrats said.

The Republicans ultimately retorted that 44 per cent of the electorate voted, but even that was a considerable reduction from the 65 per cent turnout in 1946.

The opposition newspapers again raised the cry of fraud.

And significantly, one day after the elections, a prominent Republican member of parliament announced that he was turning Democrat. Bayar told newsmen he knew of at least 40 other Republicans deputies who are on the verge of following suit.

DENNIS EXPLAINS WHY HE TURNED TO CRIMINAL WAYS

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 24.—(UP)—Gerard G. Dennis, 28, the $1,000,000 jewel thief, said today he thought the public was getting the "wrong idea" about him. He said he didn't turn to crime because he wanted to but because he was "forced to."

The debonair Canadian, who admits his career as a "Raffles" was furthered by his resemblance to Movie Star Robert Taylor, explained that his father was convicted of embezzlement when he was six years old.

"After that happened," he said, "all the other boys in my hometown of St. Catharines, Ontario, weren't allowed to play with me by their parents. I guess I got bitter and by the time I was 15, I was forced to turn to crime."

Answers Questions
Dennis continued to undergo questioning by the dozens of police officials and detectives who have swarmed here from all parts of the United States and Canada to investigate jewel thefts in their localities.

Police were trying to decide whether Dennis should be permitted to use the $1,435 cash which was found in his possession in order to hire a lawyer.

Lt. Marice Kelly, of the New Rochelle police, who captured Dennis in Cleveland last week, said the jewel thief was trying to get the various police officials to agree to consolidating their charges so he will not spend the rest of his life in jail for the dozens of burglaries attributed to him.

"He wants to reclaim part of his life," Kelly said, "and is trying to bargain for a sentence of from 20 to 30 years."

Canadian police officers, who questioned Dennis about $150,000 worth of robberies, said he expressed fear at being returned to Canada because he would face a severe sentence there as a second offender.

Twelve pupils of Kensington school were on the honor roll last semester. First grade, Robert Coleman; second grade, Gale Sweeting; third grade, Virginia Cox, Jud Stuckey, and Gary Swearingen; fourth grade, Gladys Merriman; fifth grade, Patsy Stuckey; sixth grade, Mary Jo Bolen and Burtor Manfull; seventh grade, James Meriman; eighth grade, Sally Schmid and James Roach. To qualify, each pupil must have an "A" in effort and citizenship and not below "B" in any other subject.

Several Boy Scout members of Troop 49 were among the 123 present at the father-son meeting held at the Presbyterian church in Lisbon recently.

George Lafferty of Lisbon gave a short talk on the program. At the close of the meeting a lunch was served, after which moving picture of various camps were shown.

Thomas Cartwright of East Liverpool was a recent caller in town. The next regular meeting of the Ladies Aid society of the Christian church will be their annual meeting to be held Thursday, March 3, in the annex of the church. A coverdinner will be served at noon after which election of officers will be chosen.

These announcements were made when the group met with Mrs. Jo Bolen as hostess. The president Mrs. Wayne Roach, conducted the business meeting. It was announced the group would hold a bake sale and country store Saturday afternoon, February 26 in the annex. Lunch was served to approximately twenty members and guests.

Mrs. Edna Powell of Salem, W. Va., visited recently with relatives and friends in town.

Ex-Warlord, Turned Red, Eyes China's Presidency

BY WALTER BRIGGS
HONG KONG—An elderly, unobtrusive little man who recently slipped out of this British crown colony for Chinese Communist territory may become the next leader—in name, at least—of one-fifth of humanity.

He is Marshal Li Chi-sen, 64-year-old former warlord, who aspires to the presidency of the Communist proposed "coalition" government for China's 450,000,000 people.

Around New Year's Day the marshal quietly vacated his apartment on the side of the upsk above Hong Kong harbor and boarded a ship—variously reported to be Soviet, British and Filipino.

His arrival in Communist North China was heralded in a broadcast by the Communist North Shensi radio. Li's name headed a list of 45 non-Communist "democratic" figures who, having arrived there, issued a statement of "our opinion on the current situation."

The Communists, who soon may exercise most of the political power in China are likely, many observers believe, to support Li for president.

The marshal sees himself as a rallying figure for China's anti-Chiang Kai-shek, but non-Communist left wingers and moderates. He believes that this group as a "third force" can share the governing of China with the Communists. But the way Li talks places him very close to the Communists, and many observers think he has been completely taken in by the Reds.

The Communists have strong

reason for building a "coalition" facade rather than ruling the nation on an all-out Communist basis. Such a government might attract greatly-needed technicians, engineers, administrators and the like who would shy from participating in a straight Red regime.

Li is a short, fat man who usually wears the traditional Chinese skull cap, gown and cloth slippers. His face is round and kindly, making him look more a teacher than a soldier. Li hails from Kwangsi Province in South China. Kwangsi is famous for rebels—and native home of several other Chinese leaders, notably Acting President Li Tsung-jen and Central China Commander Pai Chung-hsi.

Like the marshal, they all have variously cooperated with the generalissimo, then revolted against him. Li broke with him in January 1947, on the grounds that Chiang had "betrayed" the Chinese people. Li regards Chiang as a tyrant who has failed to carry out the reforms in the direction of democracy and economic welfare which were enunciated by Dr. Sun Yat-sen, the late father of the Chinese Republic.

Before Li left, this correspondent visited his apartment, with its hanging paintings of birds and bamboos. Asked how soon he expected to become president, the marshal said: "It's not for me to say. It's up to the people."

But he left no doubt that he wanted the job.

Three Gatty Brothers Celebrate Reunion

CARLISLE, Pa.—The three Gatty brothers, whose father, Harold Gatty, made the famous round-the-world flight with Wiley Post in 1931, got together for the first time in five years.

Cpl. Alan Gatty, 22, whose home is in the Fiji Islands, and now is a student at the armed forces information school at Carlisle, was walking along one of the post streets when he saw a man in civilian clothes who resembled his younger brother, Ronnie, whom he hadn't seen in five years.

It actually was his brother, Ronnie, who had met a friend in New York who told him Alan was attending a service school somewhere near Harrisburg. Through the combined efforts of the state police and the reserve officers association, Ronnie learned that his brother was a student at the Carlisle Barracks. Alan and Ronnie, with a third brother, Lindsay, a Cornell university student, had a reunion celebration in New York.

Old Regulations Waived, Now Admit Scorpions

PHOENIX, Ariz.—A relaxation of government laws prohibiting the import of scorpions into Arizona from Mexico has been credited with saving the lives of several children bitten by the insects.

The scorpions have been used by the Rev. Emmett McLoughlin, superintendent of St. Monica's hospital here, to manufacture anti-scorpion serum to treat persons attacked by the poisonous insects. But Father McLoughlin has had difficulty getting enough scorpions to make the serum.

For years he defied import regulations by smuggling insects across his border.

Dr. Herbert L. Stahnke, head of the poisonous animals research laboratory at Arizona State college, obtained legal delivery of a large supply of scorpions.

There were enough, he assured the hospital superintendent, to provide a sufficient full-strength serum for emergency cases.

AFL To Fight CIO For Phone Worker Control

BY CHARLES H. HERROLD
WASHINGTON, Feb. 24—(UP)—The AFL is planning a nationwide fight against the CIO and a big independent union for the right to represent 600,000 telephone workers, it was disclosed today.

Officials of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL) said they will make the fight because of a recent decision by the executive board of the Independent Communications Workers of America to recommend affiliation with the CIO.

J. Scott Milne, secretary of the Electrical Workers' union, said the group's top officials probably will draw up plans for the vast organizing drive at a meeting next week in Miami.

The drive will be aimed chiefly at signing up new members among the nation's 400,000 non-union telephone workers and the more than 200,000 now in the Communications Workers of America.

The telephone industry battle will open one more front in the biggest organizing campaign on record among the nation's 20,000,000 white collar workers. Rival AFL-CIO drives have already begun among department store clerks, insurance company and office employees.

Daniel W. Tracy, president of the Electrical Workers, and former assistant secretary of labor, gave the signal for the AFL counter-offensive. He demanded in a letter to Joseph A. Beirne, president of the independent union, that the electrical workers' be omitted from the ballot on affiliation.

Tracy told Beirne the AFL had not been given a full opportunity to outline a plan of affiliation. He insisted that his union's name not be used in the election where a recommendation for joining the CIO had already been made.

Beirne said his union would agree to Tracy's request. A spokesman said the AFL had the same opportunity to submit a plan as the CIO. The CIO offered full international union status and jurisdiction over the whole telephone industry. The AFL union offered membership only on an area, company or plant basis with guarantees of amicable settlement of questions over work jurisdiction.

Tracy said the AFL union recently won bargaining rights in competition with Beirne's union in Spokane, Wash.; Kearny, N. J., and Chicago.

Meanwhile, Beirne's union approved the ballot and letter of recommendation to be mailed next week to all members. The referendum is expected to take 60 days and the result will be known prior to the communications workers' annual convention next June in Chicago.

Beirne and the CIO have pledged an immediate set-up in their organizing among non-union telephone workers, if the amalgamation is approved.

The Atomic Production Chain

This diagram, from the Atomic Energy Commission's fifth annual report, shows the successive steps in the production and use of uranium 235 and plutonium. Raw materials are refined into feed material for the main plant units at Hanford, Wash., and Oak Ridge, Tenn. Fissionable materials are created or extracted and used in weapons (atomic bombs) or as nuclear reactors for peaceful use, such as research on the use of radioactive material in promoting better health and better production of food.

Columbus Pastor Against FEPC Bill

COLUMBUS, Feb. 24—(AP)—A Columbus pastor today expressed opposition to a fair employment practices commission for Ohio.

FEPC legislation will not do what its sponsors hope it will, Rev. William E. Ashbrook asserted. He represents the American Council of Christian Churches of Ohio.

Ashbrook was one of several witnesses asking to appear at the house labor committee's final public hearing on the controversial FEPC bill.

The plan would make it illegal to refuse to hire or to fire anyone by reason of race, color, creed, national origin or ancestry. A commission would hear complaints of discrimination and ask courts to enforce its orders.

Others asking to appear against the measure included Charles Hollman of Cleveland, an employment service operator.

Supporting the proposal was Lockwood Thompson, Cleveland attorney and Ohio State university trustee.

Questioning of witnesses at two previous hearings indicated the bill probably would be recommended for passage, possibly this week.

Rev. Ashbrook called attention to a resolution adopted by the Ohio council which said proposed FEPC legislation would:

"Incite and intensify antagonisms and thus play into the hands of Communist disruptors."

"Violate individual freedom of conscience and contribute to undermining of free economy by extension of governmental controls."

Ashbrook pointed out that the bill would exempt religious organizations from hiring and firing requirements for others.
